Rehoboth Church Dispute Given To Commission

Redstone Presbytery Group to Investigate Church Dissension

Redstone Presbytery, governing assembly for about 60 Presbyterian churches in this area, voted yesterday at a meeting in Belle Vernon to investigate dissension in the Rehoboth Presbyterian Church of Rostraver Township.

The investigation was ordered at the request of a group of Rehoboth members said to be opposed to the Rev. J. Nelson Jackaway, pastor of the church for the past eight years. None of the group has been publicly identified.

The Rev. H. B. Clawson, of Hunkers, stated clerk of the Presbytery, revealed today that a commission consisting of four ministers and three laymen has been appointed to "study the Rehoboth Church dispute without prejudice".

Commission Members

Named to the commission are the following:

The Rev. D. Lester Say, of East McKeesport, chairman; The Rev. Oliver R. Stang, of McKeesport; the Rev. Joseph E. Heckel, of Irwin, the Rev. Donald C. Smith, of Brownsville; Thomas Hudson, Jr., layman elder, of Uniontown; Robert S. George, of Mt. Pleasant and Clinton M. Tuff, of Scottdale, both laymen elders.

Mr. Jackaway, who last week won what he regarded as a vote of confidence from his congregation, said today he welcomes the Presbytery investigation.

"I exceedingly regret that this has come to pass for we must live together," he sadi. "However, I will welcome this means of clearing up the matter, for this Commission can be depended upon to give a free, fair and unbiased judgment."

Meetings of the Presbytery are not open to the public, but it was reliably reported that the complaints against Mr. Jackaway were not made on the floor at yesterday's meeting.

Mr. Clawson said there had been no discussion of the Rehoboth case. The Presbytery, he said, simply voted to approve a recommendation by its committee on ministerial relations that a commission be appointed to investigate.

The chairman of the ministerial relations committee is the Rev. John V. Berger, of Uniontown.

Dr. Berger told The Daily Independent today that the decision to recommend the investigation was made by his committee without considering any aspects of the Rehoboth dispute.

Leo N. Skemp Is Named to Head Presbytery

Leo N. Skemp, of Uniontown, a ruling elder in the Second Presbyterian Church, was elected moderator at a meeting of Redstone Presbytery held yesterday in the First Presbyterian Church of Belle Vernon.

Skemp will succeed Dr. Edgar Lawrence, pastor of the Round Hill Presbyterian Church of Elizabeth.

This is the first time a layman has been moderator of Redstone Presbytery since 1951, when James McKenzie, of McKeesport, served in the high position.

The office is for a term of one year, during which the time Skemp will have responsibility in presiding over meetings and in other administrative duties.

The Presbytery includes 64 churches in Fayette, Allegheny, Westmoreland and Greene counties, and has on its rolls 52 ministers and nearly 20,000 communicant members.

Others named to important committee posts include:

Rev. Judson Wiley, of Mt. Pleasant, to the general counsel: Rev. Charles E. Hammett, of Scottdale and Rev. Frances D. Stewart, of Connellsville, to the ministerial relations committee; Rev. William H. Ryall, of Brownsville, national missions; Rev. David Hunter, of McClellandtown, foreign missions and Frank Leamon, a layman of Mt. Pleasant, Christian education.

About $1,000 damage resulted in a two-car accident on Route 906 two miles north of Monessen about 11:50 p. m. yesterday, State Police reported today.

Operators of the cars were James Pearce, 29, of Pricedale, and John Marr, 38, of Webster.

Police said Marr had parked his car and was removing a rock from the highway when the Pearce machine struck the rear of the Marr vehicle.

No injuries were reported.

Dr. G. L. Trilli Candidate for City Treasurer

Dr. G. L. Trilli, former Monessen school director, announced today that he will be a candidate for City Treasurer at the Democratic primary May 21.

A chiropodist, Dr. Trilli has been a resident of Monessen since early boyhood.

He served three years on the School Board before resigning in 1943 after entering the Army. He was president of the board in 1942. He was in the Army for three years during World War II.

Dr. Trilli is a past commander of American Legion Post 28 and is now a trustee of the post. He has devoted much of his time to veterans' affairs.

City Treasurer John P. Spielman, Jr., who is completing his first term, has announced that he will seek reelection. He, too, is a Democrat.

Council to Meet

City Council will hold a regular meeting tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the City Building.

IKE DEDICATES SECOND TERM TO QUEST FOR PEACE — In the silvery sunshine, Chief Justice Earl Warren administers the oath of office to President Eisenhower on the steps of the U. S. Capitol while tens of thousands watch. The Chief Executive was publicly inaugurated for a second term which he dedicated to a quest for world peace. Witnessing the ceremony are (from left) Mrs. Eisenhower; former President Herbert Hoover; Chief Justice Warren; John Fey, chief clerk of the Supreme Court; President Eisenhower; Senator William Knowland and Vice President Richard Nixon.

Congressmen Hail Ike's Bid To Freedom-loving Peoples

WASHINGTON (UP) — Congressmen today hailed President Eisenhower's second inaugural address as an historic bid to freedom-loving people everywhere to accept America's unselfish leadership for peace.

The brief and eloquent speech, which Mr. Eisenhower delivered after taking his second term oath Monday, had a delayed-action impact on Congress. The lawmakers had little time to ponder its implications until today since they, like the President, were caught up in the hectic activity of the three-hour inaugural parade and the festive inaugural ball that lasted into the small hours of this morning.

By today, the strong one - world flavor of the President's address was sinking in, and with it, the recognition that Mr. Eisenhower had staked out for this nation unprecedented global responsibilities.

Recognize, Accept Involvement

"We recognize and accept our own deep involvement in the destiny of men everywhere," Mr. Eisenhower had said. "We must use our skills and knowledge and, at times, our substance, to help others rise from misery, however far the scene of suffering may be from our shores."

Some conservatives in both parties privately expressed misgivings about the sweeping pledge of long-term, no - strings foreign aid implicit in those words.

But their reservations were drowned out, for the moment at least, in a public chorus of bipartisan praise.

"A magnificent speech," said Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, a leading Democratic member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Mansfield said he was particularly gratified that Mr. Eisenhower had addressed his peace appeal "to all the peoples of the world," including those of Russia, over the heads of their rulers.

Gaudio's Store For Men Plans For Expansion

Al Gaudio, owner of Gaudio's Store for Men at 412 Donner avenue, Monessen, today announced an expansion program for his firm.

The program will include the adding of another floor thereby increasing the storage and sales space by some 2,200 square feet. Of this total, 1,600 square feet will be devoted to a new formal wear department.

Gaudio's was first opened in 1926 as a tailor shop by Gaudio's father, the late Albert C. Gaudio, at 448 Donner avenue. In 1944, a men's clothing and furnishing department was added. The elder Gaudio was active in the business until 1948, when the son succeeded him.

In 1952, Gaudio's began a new building program at its present location and opened there in 1953. A redecorating program was completed last year.

When the present expansion program is completed, Gaudio's will occupy the ground and third floors. The Seaboard Finance Co. will continue to occupy its present space on the second floor of the building.

Work on the expansion program will start this week and is expected to be completed in April.

Gaudio's will carry a complete line of suits, sportswear, furnishings and formal wear.

Youths Are Held For Questioning In Burglaries

Four Monessen youths were being held for questioning today in connection with the recent wave of burglaries in downtown Monessen, Chief of Police Michael Kuvinka said.

One of the youths has admitted his part in the burglaries and has implicated the other youths, according to Kuvinka.

The youths, three of them aged 15 and the other 16, are being questioned about burglaries which took place at Friedland's Fashion Shop, Monessen Recreation Center and Haury's Wallpaper and Paint Co. They reportedly visited Friedland's twice, netting $100 on the first visit and $10 on the second. About $42 was taken from the Recreation Center and an estimated $5.15 from Haury's.

The youths will also be questioned about the burglary attempts at the Beery Food Store and Seymour Jewelry Store. All of the firms are located on Donner and Schoonmaker avenues between Fourth and Sixth streets.

Kuvinka said they may also be linked with the burglarizing of money from Farrell's Barber Shop and several pairs of shoes from Falbo's Shoe Store, both firms are also located downtwn.

Labor Secretary Central Figure In Fund Probe

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today asked for the resignation of John R. Torquato, secretary of the state Labor and Industry Department, "because we are not in accord as to the mode of operation" of the department.

The governor-designated deputy secretary Milton Weisberg to serve as acting secretary of the department until a successor to Torquato is appointed. The dismissal of the cabinet officer becomes effective Wednesday.

Torquato immediately announced the governor will have to fire him because "I do not wish to confess complicity in any improper action by offering my resignation."

"However, it is within your prerogative as governor to discharge me from the office I now hold," he said.

Torquato rapped "certain baseless charges which by innuendo have appeared in the public press." He added in a letter to the governor:

"I have not been informed as to the reasons why my resignation is desired; I have only had the opportunity of acquainting myself with certain baseless charges which by innuendo have appeared in the public press.

"I believe that an inquiry would establish the fact that none of the funds at my disposal have been improperly used and I do not wish to confess complicity in any improper action by offering my resignation."

Torquato also disclosed that Leader's letter requesting his resignation was delivered by a state policeman.

Torquato, who is also Cambria County Democratic chairman, has been the central figure in a controversy over disposition of a special $1,170,000 fund in his department.

The governor's surprise action came in a 42-word letter to Torquato which read:

"Due to the fact that we are not in accord as to the mode of operation of the Department of Labor and Industry, I am requesting that you submit your resignation to me, effective with the close of business, Jan. 23, 1957."

Only last Thursday the governor said that to his knowledge there was nothing wrong with Torquato's handling of the special fund, which is derived from fines and penalties levied against employers for improper returns in

Auto Accessory Thefts Continue

The wave of auto accessory thefts continued in Monessen yesterday, according to the police docket today.

John Valko, of 1224 Maple avenue, said his car was stripped of two hubcaps: Edward Berkowitz, of 441 McKee avenue, a car mirrow, and Paul Stuhl, of 1028 Athalia avenue, a radio antenna.

B. V. Couple Seeks Damages From Doctor

A Belle Vernon couple yesterday began testimony before a Fayette County jury against a Belle Vernon physician, Dr. John W. Gordon.

Taking the action against Dr. Gordon are Mrs. Inez Taylor, 55, and her husband, B. J. Taylor, who operates a service station at the intersection of Arch street and Broad avenue in Belle Vernon.

Hearing the evidence is President Judge W. Russell Carr.

In her testimony, Mrs. Taylor stated that Dr. Gordon improperly diagnosed her illness and that when she stopped taking digitalis pills about a year and a half later her condition improved.

(Digitalis is a drug used to stimulate the heart and circulation.)

Dr. Gordon testified that he used standard skill and care in the diagnosis and treatment of Mrs. Taylor and employed standard apparatus in tests in order to arrive at his conclusions: that the patient was suffering from a heart condition, and an impaired heart muscle.

Mrs. Taylor testified that when she first visited the doctor upon appointment in his offices she was suffering from shortness of breath, felt tired and was fatigued.

Check Hearing Is Held Over

A hearing involving two district men on charges of passing worthless checks has been held over until Friday, according to Squire William Overand of Webster.

James Rocco, 353 Van Pelt street, Donora, and Emmett C. Merrith, 700 Jenny Lind street, McKeesport, have promised to make restitution by then, Overand said.

The two men were arrested last weekend by Rostraver Township Constable Harry Weightman. Earlier they were arrested on a similar charge in Washington County.

Peritonitis Blamed

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Allegheny County Morgue reported today the death of Gail Milligan, 18, Brookline, was the result of peritonitis.

Monessen Man, Marvin Hosier, New Plant Manager at Corning

A Monessen resident, H. Marvin Hosier, of Seneca Heights, has been named plant manager of the Charleroi branch of the Corning Glass Works, it was announced today by R. Lee Waterman, company vice-president of the Consumer Products Division.

Waterman also announced the appointment of John F. Culp as production superintendent.

Hosier succeeds Paul W. Schulz who has been named manager of production control in the company's Electrical Products Division. He will be located at the company's headquarters in Corning, N. Y.

Hosier has been associated with the Charleroi plant since 1940, serving since 1951 as production superintendent. He had been successively a cost analyst, assistant manager of the decorating department, assistant to the production superintendent, manager of the decorating department and general foreman of finishing.

Hosier's work was interrupted from 1942 to 1946 when he served in the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics and office of research and invention. A native of Corning, he was graduated from Colgate University and received a master of business administration degree in production management from Harvard Business School in 1940.

H. Marvin Hosier

He is married and has three children.

Culp has served as controller of the Electrical Products Division for the past year, following a year as assistant controller. Previously he had been administrative assistant to the secretary-treasurer of the U. S. Gypsum Company.

He served from 1941 to 1954 with the Navy Supply Corps aboard destroyers, aircraft carriers and shore bases. He was director of accounting operations in the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts from 1950 to 1952. He was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1940 and was awarded a master of business administration degree from Harvard Business School in 1950.

Local Students Get To See Inauguration

Students at Monessen Junior-Senior High School were given an extra-long lunch hour yesterday so that they might watch the inauguration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower over television.

Henry Furio, principal, said classes were dismissed at 11:40 a. m. and resumed at 1:10 p. m., thus providing the students with an opportunity to watch the historic event.

Parente Opponents Searching for Candidates to Run for Mayor

Opponents of Mayor Hugo J. Parente inside the Democratic party are conducting a search for a candidate to oppose him in the May 21 primary.

So far, however, they have failed to come up with a choice, according to the best information available today.

Mayor Parente announced sometime ago that he will seek a fourth term this year.

One possible opponent definitely removed himself from consideration today. He is John G. Check, Jr., prominent merchant and former member of the State Assembly.

Check was reluctant even to discuss the matter, but when he was told that his name is constantly being heard in connection with the mayoralty, he made this statement:

"My only interest in politics is voting. I absolutely deny that I will run for mayor or any other political office."

Another downtown merchant who has been active in politics is understood to be considering running against Parente. He is John R. Stieska, who made a strong but unsuccessful bid for a seat on City Council two years ago.

Stieska yesterday declined to confirm or deny that he is a candidate but indicated that he is giving the matter serious consideration.

Patrolman Michael Ferencz, a former political lieutenant of Parente but now an outspoken opponent, is another possibility.

Parente defeated Ferencz in a bitter primary battle four years ago after demoting him from chief of police.

Ferencz is telling friends that he prefers not to run again but will do so if another candidate does not appear.

The Mayor is expecting opposition in the primary. He underwent a thorough physica check-up at a Pittsburgh hospital last week and told associates he wants to be in good shape for a "big battle".

Parente had a serious illness which involved abdominal surgery a few years ago and watches himself carefully. He indicated to friends that his doctors have given him the green light for a vigorous campaign.

Smithton Mine Inspection Report

The removal of an overhanging of rock just outside the main slope opening and providing an emergency escapeway are urged for the Toth mine, operated by Toth Coal, at Smithton, in a Federal inspection report released today by the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

The four man operation produced 20 tons of coal a day when examined by Federal Inspector M. J. Satterfield.

The inspector also recommended supervision by a certified mine foreman; proper preshift, onshift, and weekly examinations; correction of ventilation and haulage dangers; safer electrical installations; adequate fire-fighting equipment; a suitable check-in and check-out system; maintenance of adequate first-aid equipment in the mine; and a self-rescuer for each person underground.

Getting to Sleep Is Problem to Some

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Have a tough time getting up this morning? Wouldn't you rather have stayed in bed a little longer? Well, I guess just about everyone feels like this once in a while.

Actually, though, eight hours' sleep usually is enough for the average person. There can be no steadfast rule. You might need more or you might need less.

If you go to bed early and arise early, you'll probably get along best with eight or even nine hours' sleep. If you're a night owl, you may get by with only six or seven. Some do with even less sleep.

Your efficiency is geared to your sleeping period. If you're in bed early and up early, you will be most efficient during the early part of the day. As evening approaches, you lose a good part of your efficiency.

For night owls, who sleep pretty late and just hate to get up, efficiency reaches its peak during the evening hours. Usually, it will be very low when you awake.

You men are apt to be in a daze while shaving and you'll probably stumble through your early chores. And you women might find getting breakfast a difficult task.

Whatever time you go to bed, the first three hours of slumber will benefit you most. That's when you sleep the soundest.

After three hours, there is a slow trend toward waking and you're apt to toss and turn more.

Getting to sleep, however, is the real problem for many of you. You'll toss and turn and spend a good deal of time trying to force yourself to sleep. However, there are several dos and don'ts to follow to help you into the land of nod.

Let's consider the don'ts.

Don't depend upon sleeping pills or potions. While they might be all right if prescribed by a doctor in case of an illness, they are only a crutch which you might come to depend upon. They might lead you into the drug habit, if you misuse them.

Don't exercise before you go to bed, if you sleep poorly. If you want to reduce or develop your body, wait until morning to perform your acrobatics. Exercise, both physical and mental, tends to alert you rather than soothe you.

For that reason, don't try to solve any troublesome problems just before turning in. With a good night's sleep, you'll be able to tackle them much easier the next day.

Tomorrow I'll give you some helpful hints on how to get to sleep quickly and easily.

Question And Answer

M. E.: What causes warts under the armpits and what can be done to remove them?

Answer: The cause of warts is not known, but it is possible that some are due to infection.

Some types of warts may be removed by cauterizing them with acetic acid, or by freezing them with carbon dioxide snow. Others may be removed by the application of nitric acid, or by means of an electric needle.

Business Areas Are Reporting Gains

UNVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP)—All leading business areas of Pennsylvania showed gains in general business last November.

The Bureau of Business Research at the Pennsylvania State University reported today general business showed an increase of one per cent in November over the previous month and nine per cent over a year ago.

Increases were recorded in industrial power sales, factory payrolls, steel production and department store sales. Anthracite and bituminous coal production declined but were still the highest for the month since 1952.

Breeding of Hens Require Care

By UNITED PRESS

Farmers who know the importance of daily care of a flock of laying hens realize it is even more important in the case of breeding hens, according to Fritz Leuschner, Penn State Extension poultry specialist.

Some of the details of care have to do with the eggs themselves, while others concern maintenance of profitable hatching egg production.

Of course, Leuschner explained, there are variations in the way to go about caring for the flock. If yearling hens are finishing their molt the lights must be turned on about three weeks before production is desired. In order to keep incubator capacity filled, at the peak of the chick season demand, continuous and heavy production is necessary.

High fertility is needed to insure high hatchability which is a must if the cost per chck is to be kept down, the specialist said. Therefore, at least five to six males per hundred hens are needed to insure highest fertility, he added. And with heavy breeds, it is always better to use seven or eight males per hundred hens, because fighting may reduce their numbers.

He said there were four things which command particular attention. First, the male represents half the breeding flock, Therefore the importance of using males with a desirable breeding background is a "must."

Second, make sure your birds are comfortable in extremely cold weather. Watch out for freezing head parts as it affects fertility for as long as ten weeks.

Third, make sure the males get enough feed. Some males, said Leuschner, refuse to eat from equipment where the feeding space is so small that they are continually bumping their heads while trying to eat. Open hoppers and ample space between wire grids, and between reels and the hopper edge, is preferred, he said.

Fourth, make doubly sure that your flock does not become disturbed by either internal or external parasites. Infestations of the chickens is certain to lower the vitality of the flock, and he added, if your flock is out of condition, do not use it as a source of breeding.

State Draft Call Revealed for March

Science Learns More About the Honey Bee

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP)—Science has learned a little more about honey bees, but this little may be all that is needed for anyone to play safely with the fascinating if dangerous little creatures.

An odd thing is that sound waves below or above those frequencies or of lesser intensity, do nothing to the bees They seem to ignore those waves and with undiminished energy hasten to defend the home-hive against any and all threats.

Feel Waves In Legs

Hubert Frings and Franklin Little of Pennsylvania State University who acquired this information through careful experimentation, thought the bees felt the sound waves in their legs rather than heard them. So far as is known, bees don't hear in the sense that we hear, but it has been known since the days of the ancient Greeks that sounds mean things to them.

For instance, the old Greeks knew honey bees themselves made sounds while doing certain things Since no activity of the bee represents waste, those sounds must mean things to other bees Bee scientists have never ceased to argue over what those things might be.

Bees Remain Unaffected

Frings and Little put their sound oscillators either against or close to the hives, so that the vibrations of sound waves actually vibrated the hive. They noticed throughout that bees outside the hive and bees in its entrance seemed to be entirely unaffected

Frequencies beginning at 300 cycles per second and upward to 1 000 cycles at intensities between 107 and 116 decibels, made the bees stand still. "The quiescence of the bees was so complete," they said in their report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, "that a beekeeper could safely open the hive and carry out routine servicing."

Expensive Equipment

They experimented first with bees in experimental hives which had glass sides so they could see what was going on within. Switching to standard hives, they found no differences in what happened. They repeated the experiments over several months with the same groups of bees and found that the bees didn't stop reacting.

Their sound-making equipment was expensive, as it has to be when frequencies and intensities can be varied and precisely controlled. Therefore, it hardly would pay to buy it merely to use it on bees. Professional beekeepers now use smoke to make bees logy and harmless, but that requires skill and trouble. The scientists suggested that inexpensive vibrators could be attached to hives and might work as well. However, nearby human ears would have to be plugged—sounds of such frequencies and intensities are most unpleasant.

Teamsters Union President Denies Turning Down Bid

MIAMI BEACH (UP) — Teamsters Union President Dave Beck says he told a Senate subcommittee investigating labor racketeering he would appear before it in February, but denied he turned down an "invitation" to testify before the group last week.

Beck, here for a meeting of the Teamster Union General Executive Board, denied a statement Monday by subcommittee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) that Beck turned down an "invitation" to appear before the committee.

He said he informed McClellan he would be unable to appear because of previous commitments. He said he told McClellan he would go before the subcommittee Feb. 7 or .

Beck did not indicate whether he supports the stand of several Teamster officials who refused to appear before the Senate group and challenged its authority to investigate them.

The AFL-CIO Executive Board meets here next week and is expected to take up the subcommittee investigations.

NLRB Orders Election for Claysville Plant

WASHINGTON (UP)—The National Labor Relations Board announced today an election will be held within 30 days at the Claysville, Pa., plant of General Refractories Co. to determine whether 76 machine shop employes wish to switch their union affiliation from the United Mine Workers to the International Association of Machinists.

UMW District 50 has represented all of the plant's 450 workers since 1944. The IAM asked the NLRB to place the machine shop workers in a separate bargaining unit.

Both the company and the UMW opposed the petition, but the NLRB, in a 2-1 decision granted the IAM's request for a separate unit and directed the election to determine the will of the machine shop workers

Alcorn New GOP Chairman

Gets OK From Ike For Job

WASHINGTON (UP)— H.Meade Alcorn Jr. of Connecticut today was elected Republican national chairman.

Alcorn was elected unanimously, without contest, by the GOP National Committee after he was given the personal endorsement of President Eisenhower.

He succeeds Leonard W. Hall, who is retiring Feb. 1 after almost four years as chief of the party organization.

Alcorn, 49 - year - old former speaker of the Connecticut Assembly and onetime district attorney for Hartford County, was Hall's second in command last year for handling arrangements for the GOP national convention.

His election as GOP national chairman came as no surprise.

"Made it Clear"

The President's support for Alcorn was reported to a GOP National Committee meeting by former Sen. Harry Darby, Kansas national committeeman. Darby headed an eight-man subcommittee which conferred with Mr. Eisenhower earlier this morning.

"He made it clear to us that he would like Meade Alcorn to be chairman," Darby said.

Any latent opposition to the Alcorn election vanished at once and representatives of various states scrambled for recognition to second the nomination made by Darby.

Finally, Al Judson Morhouse of New York moved that the nominations be closed and a unanimous vote cast for Alcorn. His motion was given a shout of approval.

Darby Unavailable

Although Darby had been noncommittal, the word passed among Republicans Monday that he was not available. Friends of Darby said he felt that his business interests precluded his taking such an assignment. They said he could have had the job in 1949 but declined it and that there had been no change in his attitude.

Alcorn, former speaker of the Connecticut Assembly and former district attorney for Hartford County, was Hall's second-in-command last year for handling arrangements for the GOP National Convention.

Opposition to his election came largely from the conservative wing of the party, but also from Republicans who wanted a chairman from the Midwest or Far West and with more experience in dealing with Congress. The next big job for the GOP is to regain control of Congress in the 1958 elections.

The Alcorn opposition was mostly underground because the national committee members understood that Mr. Eisenhower had already approved him for the chairmanship.

USW Candidates To Take Cases To the Courts

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Four candidates who failed to win places on the ballot for the United Steelworkers election next month will take their cases to court.

"We have exhausted appeal channels in the union," their attorney, James Ashton, said. "The courts will have to decide."

Ashton said he would ask Allegheny County Common Pleas Court this week to block the Feb. 12 election unless his clients were certified as nominated candidates.

They are members of a dissident group in the union which is opposing the re-election of USW President David J. McDonald and several of his fellow officers.

The candidates are Frank O'Brien, Pittsburgh; Walter Ross, Baden, Pa.; Walter Bocek, West Mifflin, Pa., and Gerald Kennedy, Philadelphia.

The executive board decided after a hearing in Chicago Jan. 14 that they had not received the required number of local union nominations.

A fifth, Michael D. Wallace, McKeesport, Pa., has yet to hear from the union's executive board on the disposition of his appeal.

Ashton contended his clients had received the required number of nominations and were being denied their rights under the union's constitution.

$845 Verdict in Rostraver Crash

GREENSBURG, Pa. (UP) — A Westmoreland County jury heard four days of testimony in an automobile accident case and then returned a verdict awarding damages totaling $845 today.

The jury found a collision between two automobiles in Rostraver Twp. May 31, 1955, was the result of negligence on the part of one of the drivers, Daniel Johnson, of Donora.

The verdict awarded $705 to Margaret E. Houlis, Monessen, driver of the other machine, and $140 to Carol Halverson, Donora.

Washington County DA Warns Against Juvenile Trading

Washington County District Attorney Michael A. Hanna today issued a strong warning to hotels, motels, bars and clubs against trading with juveniles.

A particularly sordid morals case involving two 14-year-old Brownsville girls set off Hanna's stern warning.

He said that eight men, seven from Washington and one from Houston, are under arrest in connection with being involved with the two girls. He stated county detectives and State Police discovered that the girls had been registered at three different motels and in one instance the registration was "Mr. and Miss. . ."

Hanna said he believes there is a definite relationship between easy access to drink by the youth of the county and resulting "promiscuity and other forms of juvenile delinquency. I think that preliminary drinking and easy access to motels and hotels can and should be stopped."

Continuing, he said. "Certain motels and hotels in the county are permitting juvenile girls to register with older men for short periods. Clubs and bars are selling strong drink to minors, both boys and girls, without asking or trying to find out if they are of age. We are going to block this avenue that leads to juvenile delinquency.

"We are going to enforce the law strictly in connection with these types of cases. State Police and liquor control agents are being asked to assist."

The District Attorney's office announced that charges of rape and contributing or corrupting the morals of a minor child has been filed against the eight men. They are free on bond awaiting a hearing before Alderman Frank Morris, of Washington.

The girls involved have been returned to their homes.

Ike's Bid

the world in dozens of languages, assured the people of Russia that Americans "wish them success" in their struggle for more freedom and economic improvement, and are waiting to extend a hand of "friendship" to them when the Iron Curtain goes up.

Some congressmen, while endorsing Mr. Eisenhower's broad objectives, challenged the administration to produce deeds, not words.

"The words have been spoken," said Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo). "The time for leadership and action have arrived. It will be difficult."

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex) said Mr. Eisenhower "set forth goals and objectives with which every American will agree."

"Our task is to find means that will achieve those ends," Johnson added.

Other congressmen offered praise without qualification.

Laid It On Line

Sen. Alexander Wiley (R - Wis), ranking GOP member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the President "laid it right on the line, not only to the American people but to the world."

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash) said "it was a very good enunciation of a goal for our foreign policy. We have never had a goal. We've been floundering. He set it up."

Congressmen and diplomatic observers, analyzing the President's 2,000-word address, found it in these major guidelines to U.S. foreign policy during the next four years:

1. America is irrevocably committed to a role of world leadership, and will not retreat into isolationism no matter how difficult or costly our "involvement" in distant troubles may become. Within earshot of former President Hoover, architect of the "fortress America" concept, Mr. Eisenhower firmly tied his modern Republicanism to the conviction that "no nation can longer be a fortress, lone and strong and safe. . .isolation (is) an impossibility."

2. American economic and technical aid will not be restricted to military allies, but will be offered, with no strings attached, "wherever in the world a people knows desperate want." To those countries, particularly in Asia and Africa, where nationalist pride is touchy and neutralist spirit strong, Mr. Eisenhower offered assurance that they may "honorably receive" America's help, "for we no more seek to buy their sovereignty than we would sell our own."

Reassures Kremlin

3. U.S. policy toward Communist satellite nations was spelled out in terms designed to reassure the Kremlin that a country which slips the yoke of Moscow domination will not automatically become anti-Communist or a military ally of the West. "We honor the aspirations of those nations which, now captive, long for freedom," the President said. But "we seek neither their military alliance nor any artificial imitation of our society."

4. America will re-assert its historic claim to leadership of colonial peoples struggling for national independence. The birthplace of the American Revolution "does not feat" the "winds of change" blowing across the world from North Africa to the far Pacific. "These hopes that we have helped to inspire, we can help to fulfill."

5. International Communism is the principal force dividing the world and working against peace. But international Communism is suffering from the blow of "a fierce and mighty force" — th revolt within its ranks of "men who love freedom."

this year are Treasurer, Controller and two seats on the Council.

Treasurer John P. Spielman, Jr., is a candidate for reelection with the support of Parente's organization. Dr. G. L. Trilli, a former school director, announced his candidacy for the office today.

Controller James Tucci also will seek another term and so far does not have an opponent. It has been reported that Andrew Kritsky, chairman of the County Tax Board, is considering running for controller.

For the Council posts, John Molnar and David Victoria will seek renomination, both for third terms, and it is assumed they will have organization backing.

William Snyder, a contractor, reportedly is interested in running for Council on the Democratic ticket, and Frank Bosco, another contractor, is also a rumored candidate.

So far, no Republican candidates for any of the City offices have appeared, and the GOP may have its usual difficulty filling out a primary ticket. The party is outnumbered by the Democrats in Monessen by about six to one.

Monessen may produce one or more candidates for Westmoreland County offices.

It is reliably reported that Frank Ezerski, Jr., assistant city solicitor, has been sounded out to run for District Attorney with the support of a group of Democrats who are backing former assistant D. A. Joseph M. Loughran in his independent candidacy for common pleas judge.

Ezerski is said to be giving the invitation consideration.

The courthouse organization choice for D. A. is reported to be Earl S. Keim, now an assistant to D. A. Alexander Sculco, who is running for judge.

Candidates have until noon on March 23 to file nominating petitions for the primary elections.

the state Unemployment Compensation Fund.

But he emphasized that the fund had merely been "studied" and there had been no investigation.

Records of the fund were recently taken over by the office of the governor as part of the Budget Bureau's study of fiscal matters in preparation of Leader's budget now being drafted for presentation to the state Legislature.

The governor, at his news conference last week, denied that he had any intention of replacing Torquato as head of the department. Torquato, whose home is in Johnstown, has held the $15,000 a year post since the start of the Leader administration two years ago.

The Budget Bureau recently released the names of 23 persons on the payroll of the fund, chiefly as investigators. Torquato said that under his jurisdiction, $187,000 from the fund has been used for "work in the migratory labor programs, refugee program, tracing and recovery of lost and stolen checks and fraud prevention and detection."

Among those on the payroll was his brother, Robert Torquato, Belle Vernon RD 1, listed as an administrative officer with compensation at $245 bi-weekly and in charge of investigations in Westmoreland, Allegheny and Washington counties.

She said she weighed 186 pounds at the time and that the doctor prescribed medication, one digitalis tablet daily.

She testified she later suffered from severe headaches and had two blood clots in the left leg. She also developed toothache and a dentist removed some roots. On April 13, 1954, she entered Charleroi-Monessen Hospital where she remained until May 27.

Mrs. Taylor testified that after she had entered the hospital and was placed under an oxygen tent another physician, Dr. Joseph D'Alessio, of Monessen, advised her not to take the digitalis.

After going home from the hospital, Mrs. Taylor testified her condition improved, her weight dropped to 166 pounds and she was able to discharge her household duties.

Upon cross-examination by Atty. Thomas A. Waggoner, Jr., defense counsel, Mrs. Taylor admitted her health is considerably improved now and the diet suggested by Dr. Gordon resulted in loss of weight. It is the contention of the defense that the patient regained her health through Dr. Gordon's continued efforts.

Atty. A. E. Jones, Jr. represents the Taylors. Two other doctors are expected to testify today in behalf of the Taylors.

Considerable of the testimony on the opening day of the trial was technical in that it related to medicinal procedure in the treatment of the patient.

In the suit for damages, the Taylors have not yet listed their expenses incurred as the result of Mrs. Taylor's illness.

Toolmaker Arrested; Called 'Mad Bomber of Manhattan'

WATERBURY, Conn. (UP) — New York Deputy Police Commissioner Walter Arm said a 53-year-old Waterbury toolmaker today admitted he was the "mad bomber of Manhattan" whose home-made pipe bombs have injured 15 persons since 1940 and touched off a nationwide epidemic of bomb scares.

Arm said George Metesky admitted making and then planting at least 32 bombs in public places in New York in reprisal against the Consolidated Edison Company, a New York utility, which formerly employed him.

Metesky confessed, police said, about two hours after he was picked up at his home here by New York and Waterbury authorities.

He was booked on charges of felonious assault, malicious mischief and possession of a dangerous weapon.

The mild-mannered soft-spoken Metesky told police he never wanted to hurt anybody and become ill each time he read that someone had been injured by his work.

But he calmly told police that he had vowed to continue his terrorism until he died—or was caught.

Police said Metesky told them he bought materials for the bombs in five and 10 cent stores and Sears Roebuck stores in both Bridgeport, Conn., and New York.

He said his letters, which marked each bomb as his, were mailed as he traveled from Waterbury to New York. Most of them were postmarked from suburban Westchester towns.

Arm said Metesky, a bachelor, told police he began making the bombs while undergoing treatment for tuberculosis at a Tucson, Ariz., sanitarium.

Police said Metesky made and planted the bombs in "revenge", against the utility, believing he had contracted the disease while working at the firm's Hellgate power station in New York.

Metesky was particularly aggrieved, Arm said, when litigation he instituted against the utility, failed to bring him any compensation.

It was believed that a check of former Consolidated Edison employes who had registered grievances against the firm, led police to Metesky.

Police said a lathe found in Metesky's home, which he shared with his two sisters, was believed to have been used in fashioning the crude pipe bombs, which, over a 16-year period, had become the mad bomber's calling card.

Metesky's handwriting checked with that on letters sent to New York newspapers by the mad bomber, police said.

Four New York detectives and four from Waterbury, armed with a search warrant, entered Metesky's home early today, saying they wanted to investigate an auto accident.

"You're looking for more than that," police quoted him as saying.

Police then found a lathe and said "Now we know the whole story."

"You suppose I'm the mad bomber, don't you?" Metesky then said to police.

An hour later, Metesky had admitted he was the terrorist whose forays set off a wave of hoax bomb scares and gave rise to scores of imitators, most of them harmless, across the nation.

Rehoboth

plaints from Rehoboth members to convince us that an investigation was called for," Dr Berger said.

Mr. Jackaway told the Rehoboth congregation in a sermon on Sunday, Jan. 12, that he had been under severe "pressure" from within the congregation as a result of his activities in "Operation Crusade", an organization of ministers which has been fighting rackets and political corruption in Westmoreland County for five years.

The Rehoboth pastor blamed his troubles on Rostraver and Westmoreland political elements which he said were anxious to get rid of him. He asked the congregation to take a stand for him or against him.

Confidence Vote

Mr Jackaway termed the actions taken by the congregation at the annual meeting last Wednesday as a vote of confidence These actions included an increase in his salary of $1,000 a year, the first raise he has had since assuming the Rehoboth pulpit, and election of officers favorable to him.

Now chairman of "Operation Crusade", Mr. Jackaway said, the group plans to be active in this year's elections in Westmoreland County.

The pastor's anonymous opponents apparently were not satisfied with the congregational action and decided to take the dispute to the Presbytery.

In the Presbyterian denomination, the relationship between pastor and congregation is normally dissolved only by mutual consent with the approval of the Presbytery. In cases of disagreement, however, the Presbytery can intervene.

According to Mr Clawson, the commission appointed yesterday has power to act. It could conceivably remove Mr Jackaway, although its decisions are subject to appeal to the Presbytery.

Washington Bar Association Elects

H. Gilmore Schmidt, of Washington, was elected president of the Washington County Bar Association at its reorganization meeting last night.

Davis G. Yohe, of Monongahela, was made a member of the executive committee.

State Assembly Reconvenes

GOP Plans For Probe Machinery

HARRISBURG (UP)—The General Assembly reconvened this afternoon with the GOP majority bent on setting up its first joint investigation of the Democratic administration.

The Senate returns at 3 p.m. and the House at 4:30 p.m.

The only piece of legislation on either chamber's work calendar was a House Republican sponsored resolution to investigate the commuted death sentences of three convicted Philadelphia killers.

House Majority Leader Albert Johnson (R-McKean) said he would call for a vote on the resolution so it could be approved and sent to the Senate for concurrence.

The proposal calls for a joint House-Senate inquiry of the state Pardons Board action in recommending clemency to David K. Darcy, Harold Foster and Harry Zietz. The three, convicted in the slaying of an innocent bystander during a Bucks County holdup, were granted life imprisonment terms by Gov. George M. Leader last year.

'Priority' Bills

Johnson indicated the House will cover considerable ground as the lawmaking machinery moved into full swing. At least six "priority" bills were to be reported from committee and numerous others were ready in the hopper. The representatives planned a two-day session with the possibility of a "consent session" Thursday to advance some proposals from second to third reading.

The Senate has 15 bills in committee and some of these were expected to be reported. The chamber also could act on the "Darcy" resolution after it clears the House.

Johnson said six bills would be reported out so that they could be placed on the work calendar for first reading Wednesday. A consent session Thursday would allow the bills to advance from second to third reading speeding passage in that chamber.

Among the legislation to get priority consideration in the House was a $150,000,000 Korean bonus proposal, absentee voting fr civilians, annual sessions of the General Assembly, special tax relief for private forests, a proposal to require the Pardons Board to publish its reasons for granting or rejecting clemency appeals and a measure to make permanent the tax refund paid farmers on gasoline used in agricultural machinery.

No tax legislation is expected to be written until after Gov. Leader submits his budget request early in February.

State Cigaret, Sales Taxes Can Be Deducted, Laws Claim

HARRISBURG (UP) — Pennsylvanians can take advantage of two new state tax laws to cut the 1956 federal income tax returns they must submit by April 15.

A new law enacted by the 1955 Legislature and signed by Gov. George M. Leader last May 10 will permit the state's residents to deduct the five-cents a pack state tax on cigarets for the first time.

And they may subtract from their gross income the 3 per cent state sales tax which they have been paying since March 7, 1956. The tax, roughly, was payable on all items except food, clothing and trade-ins. The levy must be paid on all meals purchased in restaurants.

Previous to this year, deduction of state cigaret taxes was not permissible because they were classified as excises. But the last Legislature changed the law to make them "consumer taxes," a move designed to permit their deduction from federal income tax returns.

Officials of the federal Internal Revenue Bureau here were uncertain what proof would be required for individuals listing cigaret tax deductions.

The state Revenue Department said that most state and local taxes are deductible but many persons fail to list them in their tax returns. Home buyers and owners were advised to check carefully on the various charges made against them when they purchased their property.

For instance, the state imposes a 1 per cent real estate transfer tax and many communities impose a like levy. If the buyer pays both taxes, he may deduct both. On a $15,000 home that means deductions totaling $300.

The six-cents per gallon state gasoline tax is another item which is sometimes neglected. It is legal to subtract this tax but not the federal tax on gasoline. The same applies to cigarets — the state tax comes off but not the federal tax.

Taxpayers also were reminded not to forget to deduct such state taxes as the 10 per cent impost on liquor purchased at state stores; the $10 fee for automobile motor registration plates and the $1 charge for operator's license.

At the local level, almost any of the taxes imposed under the "tax anything law" enacted by the state in 1947, may be deducted. This includes the wage taxes imposed in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and many other communities and local amusement taxes.

Red Economic Group Arrives in Budapest

VIENNA (UP —Budapest Radio disclosed today the arrival of a Soviet economic mission to help restore the revolt - shattered economy of Hungary and to piece together Soviet-Hungarian trade.

The radio said the mission, headed by a deputy trade minister, arrived in Budapest from Moscow last week. It said the Russians and Hungarians were drafting a program for the "mutual exchange of goods" in 1957.

The broadcast also asserted the two sides were discussing long-term Soviet loans but gave no details.

Cancellation of the Soviet - Hungarian trade pacts was one of the major demands of the Hungarian patriots in the early days of the freedom - from-Moscow revolt. The same demand was voiced by the workers after Soviet armor crushed the rebellion and foisted Janos Kadar on the country as prime minister.

Under the pacts, Russia has a monopoly on the entire production of Hungary's important uranium mines.

A report from Budapest said the curfew which was imposed under martial law has been cut by two hours, indicating the effectiveness of the police-state measures employed by the Kadar regime.

Meanwhile, Red kangaroo courts are systematically "liquidating" the major leaders of the rebellion.

Two were executed Saturday after a six-month trial. They were Joszef Dudas, civilian head of the All - Hungary Revolutionary Council, and his chief aide, Janos Szabo.

A third, Maj. Gen. Pal Maleter, has been sentenced to death, according to reports. Maleter's whereabouts have been shrouded in secrecy since the Russian tanks invaded Budapest Nov. 4.

Maleter, hero of the Kilian Barracks battle in Budapest, was appointed defense minister in the coalition government of Premier Imre Nagy. He was negotiating with Soviet officials for Russian troop withdrawals on the morning of the Russian onslaught and was said to have been captured at gunpoint.

Steel Buyers Market Coming; Demand Is Reported Little Softer

CLEVELAND (UP)—The steel industry is shifting towards a buyers market with demand a little softer and steel production capacity a little larger, Steel Magazine reported today.

The publication noted that the market has softened in the last two weeks, but said the slight lag has not affected users of plates, structural shapes, oil country tubular goods and large line pipe.

Major softening effect on demand is the hedge on steel buying by auto makers, Steel said.

"Latest reports from steel companies show auto makers are not confirming orders as rapidly as had been expected. Purchasing agents reveal that inventories are down to rock bottom and that they are buying only for immediate needs," the publication said.

"Other steel users are also gearing purchases to consumption. There is less incentive to buy for inventories since supply shortages no longer worry most buyers. This moderation in building inventories, however, precludes an inventory reduction—and its companion—a slump in steel mill operations later on."

The hedging on steel orders by automakers has injected a pessimistic note into the industry.

Some steel men have been saying car production won't come up to predicted 1957 levels of 6.5 million to 6.8 million. However, first quarter output will be higher than that of 1956.

The pessimism extends to ingot production with some speculation that 1957 may fall short of the 120-million tons predicted earlier, according to Steel. A 120-million ton figure would be about 90 per cent capacity. This means 10 per cent, perhaps more, capacity would be idle.

GE Layoffs in Television Work

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UP)—General Electric Co. laid off approximately 4,000 employes for six days today and another 1,200 were laid off for an indefinite period.

The employes all work in the company's television receiver and cathode ray tube departments. A slump in sales of TV sets during the last quarter of 1956 was blamed for the layoffs which were announced earlier.

Gomulka Will Oust Holdover Stalinists

WARSAW (UP) — Informed sources said today Communist Party Leader Wladyslaw Gomulka is expected to move swiftly for the ouster of holdover Stalinists from the Polish government in view of his overwhelming endorsement at the polls.

A cleanup in Communist Party ranks also is anticipated shortly.

The sources said Deputy Premier Zenon Nowak and Minister for Local Government Kazimierz Mijal would be among the first to be ousted from the government. The two were leading members of the so-called "Natolin" group in the Communist Party made up of die-hard Stalinist elements.

The Natolin group was reported to have instigated a smear campaign against Gomulka and his "National Front" candidates in the campaign leading to last Sunday's parliamentary elections.

Other lesser deputies and vice ministers also would be replaced in the government reshuffle according to the informants. They would be succeeded by trusted followers of Gomulka's "liberal" brand of Communism.

Final official returns from the elections are expected to be announced Wednesday.

But semi-official reports indicated Gomulka and most of his candidates for the 459 seats in the Sejm (parliament) won majorities ranging as high as 99 per cent. Gomulka himself carried 99.4 per cent of the votes cast in his own district in Warsaw, the Polish news agency PAP reported.

Methodist Bishop Is Named Chairman

HARRISBUR (UP) — Bishop Fred Pierce Corson, of the Methodist Church Philadelphia Conference, has been named chairman of the Pennsylvania United Church Center campaign for the state council of churches.

Council President Herbert E. Ransford Jr. announced the appointment today. Bishop Corson will direct the funds drive to raise $569,600 for the center.

Encourage Daughter to Play with Doll Clothes

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—The moral of our story for today is—encourage your small daughter when she starts making doll clothes.

This may not help her grow up to be president. But it may help her grow up to be designer for a president's wife.

Two of the three women responsible for most of Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower's inaugural wardrobe began their careers at the doll clothes stage.

Take Mrs. Nettie Rosenstein, who made Mrs. Eisenhower's pink peau de soie ball gown for the first inaugural in 1952 and the yellow lace for this year's event.

"I've been sewing just about since I can remember," said Mrs. Rosenstein. "First for dolls... than myself... then friends... and finally in business for myself." She started with a retail dress shop but now runs a wholesale firm on Seventh Avenue.

Mrs. Eisenhower was a customer even before she became mistress of the White House. Now, Mrs. Rosenstein makes many of Mamie's "important occasion" gowns. The inaugural ball dress in 1952 was purchased through Neiman - Marcus, Dallas; this year's, through Bonwit - Teller, New York, with Mrs. Rosenstein first sending sketches and material samples to the White House.

Sally Victor, who designed the violet taffeta cloche Mrs. Eisenhower selected for the inaugural parade, has been "shaping bits of material into things" since childhood.

Her formal career began when she was 18; she went to work as a stock girl in Macy's millinery department. In 1934, she opened her own wholesale and retail shop in New York, and in 1943 became the first milliner to receive the American Fashion Critics' "Winnie" award.

Through mutual friends, Mrs. Victor met Mrs. Eisenhower and began designing for her while the President was head of SHAPE, Paris.

"We're frequently startled to see a picture of Mrs. Eisenhower in a hat we made three years ago," said a Victor spokesman.

Ike Sets New Homburg Style

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower sets a new hat style every time he is inaugurated.

Four years ago he made hat history by wearing a homburg instead of the traditional silk topper for his swearing-in.

Monday he changed the crease in his homburg.

Homourgs usually are worn with a large, oval-shaped crease in the top, from front to back.

The dark blue-black homburg which Mr. Eisenhower wore and waved Monday had large dents on either side in addition to the customary crease in the top.

Cabinet members, who evidently didn't get the word, wore their homburgs in the old way.

Prices of Housing On Rise

CHICAGO (UP)—The price tag on the average house has risen during the last 10 years almost twice as fast as the average family's income.

But the house is bigger and better.

These facts were disclosed in a study by the United States Savings and Loan League, which concluded that "tight money" has kept the price of housing within reach.

The study showed that building costs have risen 37 per cent in the last decade, while the price of the average new house has risen 82 per cent.

During the same period the average family's income, estimated at $5,850 in 1956, has risen 42 per cent, the league said.

Norman Strunk, league president, said the average cost of a new house in 1947 was $6,750, excluding land. In 1956 it was $12,300.

Today's House Larger

But Strunk said today's house is larger by at least 300 square feet and probably more.

And many houses today come equipped with kitchen and laundry appliances, an extra bathroom or half-bath, and a host of other items not found in the house of 1947.

Strunk said the cost of living index has risen only 22 per cent during the decade, so that the typical family has been able to divert a greater share of its rising income into housing.

He said the triple combination of rising costs, rising incomes and bigger families has prompted the current trend toward bigger and costlier houses.

Ten years ago, the study showed, most new houses had only two bedrooms. Today they have three.

Strunk said he expects the trend to bigger and more expensive homes to continue during 1957. As in each of the past 10 years, he said, the price tag will be slightly higher but, the house will be larger and better equipped.

"Tight Money" Defended

Strunk said Americans can thank the government's controversial "tight money" policy for keeping building costs within reach.

During the last decade, he said, the biggest part of the 37 per cent bulge in building costs took place between 1947 and the close of 1952, before "tight money" became effective.

"During this six-year period of easy money, the overall cost of building increased 28 per cent," Strunk said.

During the last four years, he said, building costs increased only 11 per cent under "tight money," but the biggest increase came last year "as inflationary pressures began to revive."

"The inflationary pressures are already strong enough," Strunk said. "If we increase them further by liberalizing government sponsored home lending or by broadening the government's direct loan program, a new round of inflation is assured."

Lawrence Sponsors Budapest Mayor

PITTSBURH (UP) — Mayor David L. Lawrence has accepted membership on a committee of mayors sponsoring the visit of Joseph Kovago, last mayor of free Budapest, to the United States.

Lawrence, in a telegram sent to New York Mayor Robert . Wagner Sunday, said he hoped Kovago would include Pittsburgh in his cross-country trip.

Kovago, 43, arrived in New York by plane Sunday. He was mayor of Budapest from 1945 to 1947. After imprisonment by the Communists, he was reinstated as mayor following the outbreak of the Hungarian rebellion. He fled to Austria in November.

Still Going Strong

THE ANNUAL meeting of the members of the Monessen Chamber of Commerce, which will be held tomorrow evening, finds that worthy organization maintaining the remarkable level of activity and enthusiasm which has marked its work for the past decade.

It is more or less characteristic of civic organizations, here and elsewhere, that their energies tend to fluctuate rather widely. There are periods of intense activity and other periods of comparative inaction.

But for about 10 years now, ever since the close of World War II, the Monessen Chamber has maintained a consistent pace. Throughout this period the membership has grown steadily, not spectacularly, and the Chamber has found the kind of persistent, sensible leadership which is more interested in sound community progress than in setting off skyrockets.

The Chamber of Commerce has fewer than 400 dues-paying members. But we doubt that there are many citizens of Monessen from school age up who are not aware of the contributions which the Chamber makes daily in the cause of a better community. As has been pointed out here many times, the Chamber is the only organization whose membership is open to the public which devotes all of its energies all of the time in the interests of the whole city.

The annual meeting tomorrow evening will be especially significant because the guest speaker is to be Allison R. Maxwell, Jr., the new president of Pittsburgh Steel Co. Mr. Maxwell hardly needs a welcome to Monessen since he once lived here and his whole business career has been spent with Pittsburgh Steel. But this is his first public appearance in the city since he became head of the company several months ago and hence the first chance the community has had to wish him well.

The Law Takes Over

THE ALLEGED "scandal" involving some members and former members of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission is nearing that stage when the courts must be allowed to discover the truth.

An investigating grand jury, after hearing witnesses and considering available evidence for several months, has recommended the indictment of 23 persons, including two present members of the Commission and one former member, on a variety of charges involving misuse of Turnpike funds.

It will now be up to a regular grand jury, sitting in Dauphin County, to decide whether the indictments shall be brought and the charges prosecuted. As a general rule, indicating grand juries are inclined to follow such recommendations.

Governor Leader and other members of his administration have been using the alleged "scandal" for months in their political oratory, as if the charges had already been proven and constituted an indictment of the Republican party, which had controlled the Turnpike Commission for many years. So they may have been a little surprised to have the investigating grand jury include the name of the present Commission chairman, a prominent Democrat who was appointed by Governor Leader, in its recommendations.

In any event, we believe the matter is one for the courts, not the politicians, to handle from here on. After the truth has been determined there will be time enough to make some more speeches if any are indicated.

The Right Leader

AS HE HAS on many other great occasions, President Eisenhower in his second inaugural address put into fitting words the essence of what is in the hearts of the American people at this moment.

The President entitled his address, "The Price of Peace", and a descriptive title it was. For Mr. Eisenhower was dedicating himself and the American people once more to "the belief that we can help to heal this divided world" and that we can, by various efforts, help to take the "weight of fear and the weight of arms from the burdened shoulders of mankind".

It was a message of hope and confidence because President Eisenhower is a man of hope and confidence. He believes that we can do what he has said for us that we want to do. And believing this, he would have us throw our whole national strength into the cause.

This is a great and strong country, and we do not think it is presumptuous to say that Providence has made us great and strong at this moment of history so that we may lead the world to a lasting peace.

Watching the President yesterday as he renewed his personal dedication and hearing him express the purposes of our people, we could not help feeling that we have the right leader for the hard striving that is before us.

Merry-Go-Round—

Gruenther Is Ike's Choice For 1960

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Who is the man whom President Eisenhower personally wants as his successor in 1960? It may be four years off, but already the politicians are pondering that question. There are three obvious candidates. But there is also a man whom the politicians don't know much about who happens to be Ike's personal choice. well-known candidates are: (1) Vice President Nixon, who has been running for some time, (2) sen. William Knowland of California, who has just put himself in a better position to contest Nixon; and (3) ex-Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who says he isn't a candidate but who probably could be persuaded. He's a man to whom Eisenhower is heavily obligated.

Mr. Pearson

The man whom Ike would like to see the Republicans nominate, however, is his old Army friend, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther.

Not even the politicnans know it, but the move to nominate Gruenther has gone much father than mere personal desire. A group of Ike's closest friends in New York already have organizdd a quiet drive to groom Gruenther for the presidency. They are the same men, sometimes called the "Wall Street king-makers," who helped finance the Eisenhower campaign, built his private residence at Augusta, and picked many of the key men in his cabinet. They include Gen. Lucius Clay, head of Continental Can; Sidney Weinberg, the big investment banker; and Bill Robinson, head of Coca-Cola.

Build-up Started

It was through them that Gruenther was first offered a $100,000 spot with Olin-Mathieson Industries. Then when Ike's idea of putting Gruenther in the White House became known, it was decided to make him head of the Red Cross, just across the street from the White House, where he could advise with Ike, play bridge with him, and get the same buildup Herbert Hoover got in World War I as a humanitarian.

Later, when John Foster Dulles bows out of the State Department, Gruenther may replace him — though this is by no means certain. It might be politically expedient to remain with the Red Cross.

The main fact, however, is that plans are definitely in the works to groom Ike's wartime friend and former Supreme Commander of NATO as the next Republican candidate for President.

NOTE — General Gruenther made a great impression on European political leaders. Though they dislike military men, they liked Gruenther's civilian approach, the efforts he made to build up NATO.

His initial, and perhaps greatest, personal bond with Ike is through bridge. As an instructor at West Point, Gruenther was a crack bridge player, kept a mattress in the back of his car to sleep on while his wife drove him from New York to West Point after bridge tournaments. He was chief of staff to Gen. Mark Clark during the Italian campaign, is credited with organizing the Salerno landing so carefully that he played bridge below decks while the invasion took place.

Capital Chaff

North Carolina's tobacco-chewing Sen. Kerr Scott is the greatest champion of tobacco on Capitol Hill. He likes to exercise both his legs and jaws on his way to the office, walks the five miles from his apartment to Capitol Hill, spitting tobacco as he jobs along. It takes about two plugs of tobacco to make the trip . . . This early exercise makes it easy for Scott to outsit his fellow senators during the day's long committee sessions. "By the time I walk to the Hill," he says, "I feel like sitting. I can sit there as long as the best of them." . . . Three prominent Washingtonians are graduates of the same law class. Sen. Joe O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), Sen. Dennis Chavez (d., N.M.) and GOP National Chairman Len Hall graduated from Georgetown University in 1920 . . . DeWitt Yeates, an attorney for several small airlines, noticed that part of the proceedings at a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing was missing from the official transcript. He did a little detective work, found that the stenographic tape had been cut and cellophane-taped together at the point of the missing testimony

Today and Tomorrow—

Big Budget, Big Country

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Looking at the big budget which the President has just submitted to Congress, the obvious question is why with Mr. Eisenhower in the White House, with a stalwart like George Humphrey in the Treasury, federal spending has risen so much. There can be no doubt about what Eisenhower meant to do when he took office four years ago. He promised then that in two years he would reduce the last Truman budget, which reflected the Korean war and rearmament, down to 60 billions, a reduction of some 14 billions, and he certainly hoped that the reduction would "steadily continue."

Mr. Lippmann

In his first two years he did reduce expenditures by some 10 billions, mainly by savings on national defense. But since then he has felt he had to ask for more and more money. The new estimates are not much below the high Truman budget of 1953 and, if expenditures for federal highways are included, they are higher by nine billions than the first Eisenhower budget. The bulk of the increase is for defense. But there is not insignificant increase of three billions in what are called "civil benefits," a term which covers the veterans, agriculture, housing and natural resources.

Humphrey Unhappy

All this happened under Eisenhower and Humphrey, and in the face of an Eisenhower landslide, which removes any need to bid for votes. Mr. Humphrey makes no bones about his personal unhappiness at the size of the expenditure. What, if he had had his way and not been overruled by the President, would he have done to reduce the budget?

He has not said plainly what he would have done. But reading between the lines, it appears that he would have altered our present military policy on the one hand, and on the other, he would have resisted sternly the various demands for federal aid. In the military establishment he would, it appears, have concentrated on the new big strategic armaments, and he would then have made substantial economies in the conventional sea and ground forces. This would mean an establishment designed to deal only with overt Russian aggression, but unprepared to do much about local and limited disorders.

In the field of "civil benefits," he would have fought off the advance of the welfare state.

In other words, the substantial reduction in the Eisenhower budget, which Mr. Humphrey regards as so necessary to our economic health, could not be made without fundamental changes in policy. It would mean a change in the Eisenhower foreign policy, which is one of containment on a global scale, and requires the support of conventional forces. It would mean an abandonment of the Eisenhower domestic policy, at least that part of it which is called the new Republicanism.

For the new budget is big because of the big policies to which the President has committed himself.

Population Growing

Yet, apart from the various items which of course need to be scrutinized by Congress, is it fair to measure the over-all size of the 1958 budget by the smaller size of previous budgets? Since the Eisenhower administration came to power in 1953 the population of the United States has increased by 10,000,000 persons. This country is, in fact, having an explosive expansion of its population. The labor force has increased by about 5,000,000. The total national production is larger by more than $50. Surely, the President is right in saying in his message that "the budget must also reflect the general responsibilities of a government which will be serving 172,000,000 persons in the fiscal year 1958."

Compared not with other budgets but with the growth of the nation and of the economy, the present expenditures have not increased even proportionately. Short of a miracle, that is to say a peace settlement of the cold war, it is vain to expect expenditures to be drastically reduced. These big expenditures reflect the two basic facts — that the population is growing prodigiously, and that there is a race of armaments proceeding at a rapid rate.

Costs Bound to Rise

The prospects are that the growth of the American population will require increased government spending. For when the population grows and becomes concentrated in the great metropolitan centers, the need for public expenditure is bound to rise. Masses of people living in cities and in suburbs need all manner of public works and facilities which are not necessary when they live in country villages.

We speak of the American way of life. In a material sense we have a rapidly expanding population with a way of life which is new in our generation. This great human change is reflected in all the government budgets, federal, state and local throughout the land.

Out of the Files

Thirty Years Ago—

Saturday, January 22, 1927

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a double frame house at Speers this morning with an estimated loss of $4,000. The building was occupied by the families of John Standard and William Woolridge, whose household furniture was a complete loss.

A busload of Monessen people enroute to Pittsburgh last evening had a thrilling experience when the bus collided in the dense fog with a heavy truck of the Kenny Transfer co. on Donora-Monongahela Road near the old Shoenberger Mine. None of the passengers nor the driver was injured.

A delegation of members of the Monessen Chapter of the Eastern Star attended a meeting last evening in Washington, Pa. In the party were Mrs. J. Karl Beery, Mrs. J. B. White, Mrs. C. S. Duvall, Mrs. Roy E. Honsberger, Mrs. A. G. Dunlap, Mrs. W. H. Reese, Isabelle Reese and Isabelle Blyholder.

Twenty Years Ago—

Friday, January 22, 1937

Devastating floods swept into 11 states today, forcing upwards of 125,000 persons from their homes, isolating communities and bringing millions of dollars in damage. Eleven are known dead. From the Ohio river to Pittsburgh, which spilled over the Golden Triangle, in the business district, flood damage was reported over thousands of acres.

Ten Years Ago—

Wednesday, January 22, 1947

In a City Council session this morning, W. Roy McShaffrey was elected chief of the Municipal Fire Department and City Engineer Frank Sculio was appointed general works superintendent and purchasing agent for the City.

After several mild days, the Monessen district was hit by the coldest weather of the season, with high, biting winds intensifying the effects of the cold. The mercury dropped from 50 to two degrees above zero in the last 24 hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Cowan, of Graham avenue, visiting in New York City, appeared this morning on "The Give and Take" program broadcast from that city and received locally over Station WJAS.

Women Guests Pests In Hostess' Kitchen

By MARGARET LATROBE

Psychologists say we don't always know our real motives for a course of action. Certainly we don't admit them. We have a list of what we think are our true motives, but. . . . . .

Snapped at the homefolks today? You had good reason — the kids left their clothes scattered around and about and under. Or your wife knows 365 times less about bookkeeping than she did this date a year ago. Or your husband forgot the errand he promised faithfully. Or didn't you snap because the scales went up five pounds and you hate yourself for giving them a right to?

Mrs. Latrobe

I wonder what makes women insist on "helping" another woman get dinner on the table, when the poor thing wants only to be alone with the balky cornbread? The volunteers — invited with husbands for a meal and maybe some cards — are tickled pink to be dressed up and out of their own cuisines for an evening.

What sends them scurrying out of the parlor, into the last-minute dizziness of another's kitchen — where they are of no earthly help at all? When one militant female trots out to get a finger in the stew, shall the rest be far behind? Huh-uh. Short of posting armed Marines at the kitchen door, hostesses of informal suppers are helpless against the march of "What can we do to help?" — ers.

Actually, it was through no accident that one-dish dinners became so popular for feeding friends these days. Get it cooked beforehand, girl — unless you want chaos during dinner's final moments of preparation. Unless you can sign an affidavit that all's done that's going to be done — you are lost. Unless the calories are long since peeled, pared and parboiled, waiting only your glad cry — "Come and get it," lady guests will trample you underfoot right in your own domain. All in the name of helping. "Oh, I wouldn't use those napkins — don't you think it needs more salt and a touch of wild acacia blossom (ground fine, by hand, is the only way to use 'em) — are you watching the chicken? I always say you can scorch some things and get by with it, but not chicken!"

Not chicken. By the time one helper has splashed herself good with hot grease (goody) and another has hacked a finger on that dull paring knife (goody, goody) and the third slipped and broke her habit of fine language (ditto), a hostess may wish they were having wonderful time anywhere else but in her house.

Why do women do that? They detest being "helped" by outside females at home. Having fed a few pals and friends — at home — they want dirty dishes to have the privacy every dirty dish deserves. Why then, away from home, do they make a run for it? The other gal's kitchen, where they couldn't help even if they (really) wanted to? Is it to give the appearance of being unable to stay far from a cookstove — which we all escape gleefully once in a while? Is it to check up on Mabel — to gauge her knack of making dinner come out right? Or is it that the boys in the front room are boring?

Come, come, girls — your real motive?

'Fire the Coach' Spirit Won't Build a City

To the Editor:

The Daily Independent, the editor and sports editor are to be congratulated for their admirable stand taken recently in defending the "score-card record" and the youth training program of our football coach, Armand Niccolai. The newspaper, I believe, has also contributed greatly towards generating a sufficient amount of favorable public opinion that should erase and reverse any further growth of the "Fire the Coach" mania, directed at Niccolai.

I suppose there is a bit of the "Fire the Coach" spirit in each of us. As Americans, the desire to win is a basic part of our make-up. None of us is willing to settle for anything less than a majority of victories. And since such a feat is mathematically impossible, this season of the year usually finds the chant of "Fire the Coach" sweeping the length and breadth of the nation.

As we all know this chant was also heard at a recent meeting of the School Board with a minority expressing dissatisfaction with the end results of our football coach, Mr. Niccolai. It's high time we in Monessen sing a few favorable phrases for a teacher-coach who has performed in excellent fashion in grooming our youngsters to be good competitive and enlightening citizens.

Building a City

Please don't misunderstand me. This writer is anything but a good loser. Different people just get worked up over different things. To some, football is a way of life, to others it is only a sport. To some, helping to build a better city is a deadly serious proposition, to others it is trivia.

The completion of a new drainage system or adoption of a new housing code designed to save property and perhaps even lives is more exciting to some people than a 99-yard run for a touchdown. A new street improvement program or the dedication of a new parking plaza, which will save the people both time and money and also provide new conveniences, can be more thrilling to some than a long field goal.

If we here in Monessen translated our efforts to care for our community needs into football terms, we would find ourselves bowl candidates, year after year. In our civic battles for improvements, we have had better than average quarterbacking. The plays that have been called certainly were well known to the entire team. Nothing tricky, just plays calling for community improvements.

What a great victory we could celebrate in Monessen in our civic battle if every citizen quit the role of spectator to become a member of the team, working together for those gains we need so badly. Instead of "firing the coach" let each of us accept a part of the responsibility for past failures and go on from here to the top of the heap. Victory in city building can be a long-lasting thrill for all. So there's still time to pay your civic rent and by so doing Monessen should encounter no difficulty in receiving a bid to the "Better Community Bowl" during the year 1957.

'Tight Money' Is Becoming Very Important in America

By ROBERT SHORTAL

NEW YORK (UP) — Tight money is becoming one of the facts of life for more and more Americans — and it appears it is going to get tighter.

What is meant by "tight" money? that it's hard to get?

That always was true, but this particular phrase so widely used now means that it's getting harder to borrow and particularly that interest rates on loans are getting steeper.

Why is it tight? Simply because there are more demands for loans than there is capital to go around and the policy of the Federal Reserve, backed by the Eisenhower administration, is to try to hold borrowing down lest it lead to runaway inflation.

There are some paradoxes in this tight money situation. The fact is that some loans are hard to get, others were never easier. The housing industry complains it is hit hard while consumers can get quick credit for everything from dental work to vacations.

Then, too, the federal government—while warning against inflation—has just presented a budget calling for spending some $71 billion. State and local governments will bring the overall total to more than $106 billion this year.

Spending Going Up

Industry is going to spend a record $40 billion in expansion projects. And estimates are that the American consumer will fuel the boom in 1957 by spending a whopping $275 billion for goods and services—a gain of around $9 billion over 1956.

A big portion of that gigantic expenditure — government, industry and consumer — will be borrowed. Consumer debt already totals around $41 billion and is rising. The federal budget will be balanced but state and local governments wil' borrow up to two-thirds of their planned outlay.

This huge spending spree is the basic reason why money is tight, why you have to pay more to borrow. Actually, more and more credit is being poured into the economy but it was outstripped by demand.

As one economist put it:

"There are only so many bricklayers, carpenters and engineers in our economy. Only so many tons of steel, bags of cement and pounds of nail. We cannot build homes, factories, schools, hospitals, sewer systems, shopping centers and office buildings with paper money. It takes materials and men."

Production Behind Demand

Therein lies the danger — that production falls so far behind not only demand but the artificial credit that the purchasing powers of currency will fall dangerously.

The purchasing power of the dollar has been almost halved by inflation since 1939. Even so, our living standards have increased because wages have more than doubled.

One of the chief opponents of the tight money policy is Rep. Wright Patman of Texas. He believes there is danger it may wreck the economy.

"We must make sure that such credit resources as are available are flowing to the right spots," he said, "and that efforts, however justifiable in restraint of threatened inflation, do not lead over the hump into a period of deflation which may be even more difficult to deal with."

Ray D. Murphy, chairman of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, does not agree. He says the fact that money is tight "simply means that we have been trying to expand our consumption, our productive facilities and government services faster than our capacities for doing so permit."

"People have become accustomed to low (interest) rates for so long that they are taken for granted and are assumed to be normal," he says. "People seem to forget that for 20 years interest rates were deliberately kept at artificially low levels by pumping extra money into the credit system."

At the root of the tight money problem, economists say, is the fact that savings have not kept pace with the nation's mounting credit requirements. August Ihlefeld, president of the Savings Banks Trust Co. of New York, terms that the greatest single threat to our prosperity.

N. J. Governor, Bride Honeymoon In West Indies

BARBADOS, B.W.I. (UP)—Gov. and Mrs. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey honeymooned today on this island in the Caribbean.

Meyner and his bride, the former Helen Day Stevenson, arrived here Monday night.

They spent the night at the "pink cottage" which stands on the grounds of the stately summer home of former British member of Parliament Ronald Trees on the island's west coast.

The "pink cottage" is the same house in which Mrs. Meyner's cousin, Adlai F. Stevenson stayed during a vacation in 1953.

The governor and his lady said they decided on Barbados for their honeymoon because of Trees' invitation and because many of their friends had praised the island.

The couple said they planned to spend 10 days here before returning to New Jersey where they will take up residence in the Morven, the executive mansion in Princeton.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UP) — The PTA of the new 42-room onas Salk School, largest elementary school in California, has mobilized the school's principal. They gave Principal Melvin Miller a pair of gilded roller skates Monday. He had complained of sore feet caused by making his daily classroom tour.

Unusual Weather Brings Tornado In Oklahoma

By UNITED PRESS

Mild air lingering over the eastern part of the nation clashed today with an Arctic mass of subzero air that howled into the central section of the country.

The jarring contrast produced at least one tornado and caused sharp temperature drops in the plains states. The twister trampled through Warner, Okla., Monday, tearing up a farm and service station, but causing no injuries or deaths.

Turbulent storms that thundered ahead of the wintry air pushed the spring-like air farther east. Temperatures tumbled from Monday's readings in the 30s and 40s to the 20s and lower as the cold mass arrived.

The area from Montana eastward through the northern plains saw the return to polar readings which they had momentarily escaped. Mercury sagged to as much as 20 below zero in some spots. The region between the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific also cooled off during the night.

In contrast to this, moist tropical conditions over the East kept the mercury up in the 50s from the lower Great Lakes to the Atlantic Coast. Gulf states lolled in a balmy climate with readings in the 60s.

A BELATED NEW YEAR RECEPTION — Queen Juliana of the Netherlands inspects the guard of honor at the Royal Palace in Amsterdam as she arrived for the annual New Year's reception for the diplomatic corps. Flood Experts Keep Eye on Snow Blanket

By EDWARD SIELSKI

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Flood forecasters and U. S. Army Engineers are keeping a wary eye on the abnormally heavy snow-blanket covering the Allegheny River watershed.

The experts also are maintaining a close watch on their thermometers and the weather forecasts. It is the combination of the snow blanket and the weather which will determine whether there will be serious floods in the 200-mile long Allegheny Valley.

With temperatures climbing after the long spell of snowy, cold weather, a serious situation already threatens at Oil City, about 70 miles north of the river's mouth at Pittsburgh.

Forecasters reported Monday that the Allegheny is frozen over, blocking the mouth of tributary Oil Creek. Ice was jammed up in the creek to within three feet of the 21-foot flood level.

In event of a sudden thaw, the ice-formed dam would back up the run-off from melting snow and send flood waters into the city. Flood forecasters have alerted residents and Civil Defense workers were standing by.

A flood potential has built up for virtually all communities along the Allegheny from Pittsburgh to Olean, N.Y. An average of 17 inches of snow lies in the watershed above Warren.

Vernon Houghton Jr., chief hydrologist of the Federal - State Flood Forecasting Service at Pittsburgh, estimates the water content of this snow is equvialent to a one-inch rain.

A rapid melting of the heavy snow mantle would send its water content pouring down the valley. Comparatively little of the water would be absorbed by the earth, because it already is virtually saturated and frozen.

Houghton said the snow-blanket itself is not the prime factor in the build up of the flood threats. The important thing is the rate of run-off of the water content.

U.S. Army Engineers, who are in charge of the navigable portion of the river and the big flood control dams in the tributaries, will make their annual snow survey in about 10 days.

They will seek to determine the water content of the entire snow blanket and its texture. They are optimistic that the water content may be low because much of the snow fell in extremely cold weather and is of the fine grain type.

The flood forecasters also seek to determine if the snow blanket is widespread, or if it forms a broken pattern. They must decide how much of the runoff probably will find its way into the Allegheny when the snow melts.

Reports indicated that the snows in the Allegheny headwaters on both sides of the Pennsylvania-New York border range in depth from one to two feet, undoubtedly deeper in remote mountain areas. The normal depth at this time of year is five to six inches.

Friendship, N.Y., had 25 inches on the ground last week. Depths at other spots in the New York state part of the Allegheny watershed were Franklinville 14, Jamestown 14, Sherman 18, Olean 6.

On the Pennsylvania side, last week's depths were: Bradford 9, Coudersport 11, Annin Creek 8, Warren 5, Union City 15, Torpedo 10, Meadville 7, Clermont 11 to 13, West Hickory 7 to 9, Ridgway 12, Utica 9, Franklin 10, Sharpsville 6, Brookville 9, Curwensville-Punxsutawney 9.

A continued thaw of several days, without nightly dips below freezing, would mean a rapid run-off of the melting snow and send streams surging upward. If an ice gorge should block the increased flow at any point along the river, the flood threat would soar.

Continued thawing with rain is another ominous possibility. As an example, if the Warren area had a 50 per cent run-off from its snow, plus 1.4 inches of rain in a 12-hour period, flooding would occur.

Under the same circumstances, 1.65 inches of rain would bring floods at Meadville; 1.45 at Ridgway, and 1 inch in the Curwensville-Punxsutawney area.

The forecasters not only are concerned about the possibility of a quick thaw. Another prolonged wave of extremely wintry weather would increase the flood potential by piling up new snow on the present blanket and causing further ice jams.

To Honor Musial in Novel Fashion

Stan Musial, baseball's player of the decade, will be honored Thursday during a novel testimonial banquet in St. Louis. The affair will be promoted by a medical group in Missouri with all proceeds to go toward cancer research. Tickets sell for $25 each. Already more than a 1,000 have been sold. In all, the affair is expected to produce better than $30,000 for the research program . . . Incidentally Monessen will be represented at the affair by former superintendent of schools Dr. Michael Duda and his family. They were extended a personal invitation by Musial, who credits Dr. Duda for much of his early athletic training. It was Dr. Duda, as baseball coach at Donora High, who started Musial on his way to baseball success.

Supposedly, one of the spectators at the Charleroi-Monessen basketball game tonight will be Duquesne University's ultra-successful cage boss Dudey Moore. He'll look over a couple of Cougar prospects . . . In trouncing Homestead 77-49 the other night, the McKeesport High basketballers hit on 51 per cent of their field goal attempts. That's fancy shooting, especially away from home . . . There's a hot rumor that George Chacko, long-time Charleroi Junior High basketball-football coach, would be willing to take Mike Booth's place as top assistant to CHS grid boss Rab Currie.

Trotters Started as 'Savoy Five'

Those entertaining Harlem Globetrotters, who will appear at the Monessen High gym on February 6, were originally called the Savoy Big Five after the Chicago ballroom where the team first played back in 1927 . . . German Twp. football coach Lou Rozzi is unimpressed by the report that a couple of schools may not join the newly-proposed Tri-County Conference of Class A schools because they do not relish meeting Rozzi's merciless Uhlans. "Who's fault is that?" remarks Rozzi. "Why don't they work at it — and I mean work — like we do? . . . If we can win, there's no reason why others can't." . . . Down West Virginia way, they're comparing the current Mountaineer basketball team to the powerhouse creations of 1946-48 and 1952.

District products had good seasons during the 1956 National Pro League campaign. Bill George, ex of Waynesburg, was named to the Associated Press All-Star team as a result of his work for the Chicago Bears; Bert Rechichar, formerly of Rostraver and now of the Baltimore Colts, was picked as the outstanding back in the Pro Bowl game; while Fredericktown's Joe Marconi was selected as the top rookie with the Los Angeles Rams . . . Jeannette school officials have relaxed their long-standing policy against radio broadcasts of sports events. All remaining basketball games may be aired without charge. However beginning next season a $20 fee will be attached to the broadcasting rights . . . By the way, Monessen High charges the radio men $50 per game.

'55 Cougars Better, Says Currie

Charleroi football coach Rab Currie raised some eyebrows the other day when he told friends his 1955 team was better than last year's outfit, which won ten straight regular season games. Explained Currie: "The 1955 team had more speed and depth, but they weren't as lucky as the 1956 gang and they played stiffer opposition." . . . Just for the record, the '55 Charleroi eleven won six games, lost two and tied two . . . Bellmar High's fine footballer John Hewitt may wind up at the Naval Academy. He's a real gem . . . And who else felt shocked when under-rated Butler whacked highly-regarded Ford City, 66-47, in basketball the other day?

Mantle Says Snider May Top Ruth's Mark

By OSCAR FRALEY

ROCHESTER, NY., (UP)—Boyish Mickey Mantle insisted today that Babe Ruth's record 60 home runs "is safe from me" but insisted that Duke Snider of the Brooklyn Dodgers "well may break" the Bambino's magic record.

"I don't think I can improve on the 52 home runs I hit last season," Mantle said as he accepted the S. Rae Hickok $10,000 gold and diamond belt as the Professional Athlete of the Year. "But Snider could because he has a lot of power and a good park to hit 'em in."

The difference between Yankee Stadium and Ebbets Field, where Snider plays his 77 home games annually, was Mantle's major reason.

"Look at it this way," said the triple crown champion who also paced the major leagues with a .353 batting average and 130 runs batted in. "Most of my power is to center field—and it's 470 feet to the center field wall in Yankee Stadium."

Analyzes His Batting

Mantle acknowledged that his mental processes "went too many different ways" at the end of last season and thus cost him a higher batting average.

"I should have hit for a higher average," he asserted. "But unconsciously I must have been swinging for the long ball late in the season as I started to think about the possibility of breaking Ruth's record. Then, too, I began to think about winning the triple crown, and Al Kaline and Ted Williams were right behind me.

"At the start of the season I was taking a nice easy cut and not worrying about anything," he added. "Then, when I started to take that full swing, I started striking out more often. I think if I play it right I should be able to hit for a higher average."

Mantle disclosed that, having refused one Yankee salary offer for 1957, he had met with General Manager George Weiss in Chicago but still had not arrived at an agreement.

The Oklahoma kid is believed to have earned $32,500 last season and reportedly is demanding $75,000 with the idea of accepting $60,000—to make him the highest paid player on the club at $2,000 more than catcher Yogi Berra.

Predicts Yankee Pennant

Meanwhile, he doesn't doubt that the Yankees will shoot down the rest of the American League again this season.

"The Yanks will probably win," he said matter of factly. "Among those who could finish second I'd have to list Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and Boston."

Nor does he hesitate at saying why.

"We'll be stronger this year," he stated. "We've got a lot of young players and they're getting better all the time."

And, whether he breaks Ruth's record or not, Mantle undoubtedly considers himself among them. Added to which is the fact that this gifted, analytical young man with all the muscles despite his home run modesty will make another great run at the triple crown come the good old summer time.

Viaduct Upset in City Loop

Fuocos AC Chalks up 49-43 Win

The biggest upset of the City League season had the defending champion Viaduct basketballers reeling today.

They were stunned last night by Fuocos A. C., dropping a 49-43 decision.

The setback was only the third in 14 starts for Viaduct this season. The other two losses were administered by the pace-setting Cro-Ams.

Jim Bricker led Fuocos to the win, scoring 15 points. He came through with four straight field goals in the final period to nip a late Viaduct challenge.

Led All The Way

Fuocos led all the way, Viaduct did manage to get within two points with four minutes to go but the hot-shooting Bricker personally took care of the threat.

Mike Young led the losers with 16 points. Viaduct played the game with only five men.

In other tussles last night, Ozarks dropped the Cips, 56-48, and S-L topped East End, 49-41.

Ray Johnson flipped in 22 points to pace the Ozarks to their hard-earned win. For the losers, Lloyd Amprim had a dozen.

Top Man

Top man in the S-L victory was Gene Hall, who came through with 18 markers. Ed Burdock tried to keep East End in the game with 14 points even though he played only during the second half.

No City League action is scheduled tonight, but three games are on tap tomorrow. Ozarks will meet Big Five at 7; S-L will take on the Yellow Jackets at 8 and Cips will square off with East End at 9.

Musial to Sign for Estimated $75,000

By UNITED PRESS

There's a sentimental story behind the St. Louis Cardinal contract Stan Musial is all set to sign for about $75,000 within a week.

Musial and General Manager Frank Lane already have agreed to terms for 1957 and Stan The Man again will be the National League's highest salaried player at approximately $75,000. He drew a base pay of $75,000 last year plus $5,000 because the Cardinals attracted more than a million fans.

Although Musial, who batted .310 last year and led the league with 109 runs batted in, has okayed the new terms, he hasn't officialy signed his contract yet.

Lane Explains Delay

Lane has been criticized for the delay in signing Musial but he explained Monday it was because of the absence on vacation of club secretary Mary Murphy.

"Miss Murphy has officiated at all 15 of Musial's contract signings and we would not think of closing with Stan without her present," Lane said in a telegram to Sports Editor J. Roy Stockton of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Brooklyn Dodgers corraled four pitchers at a clip today when they announced Roger Craig, Don Bessent, Ed Roebuck and Don Elston had agreed to terms.

With Clem Labine slated for starting duty, Bessent, who had a 4-3 record last season but saved numerous other games, looks like the Dodgers' key man in the bullpen. Craig, the stringbean right-hander, had a 12-11 slate after getting off to a jackrabbit start.

Roebuck was 5-4 last year and Elston 7-8 at St. Paul in the American Association.

Detroit Leads League

Detroit leads the American League pen-and-ink race with 23 players signed up to now. The Tigers signed two young pitchers today in Charles Daniel and Don Lee. Daniel had a combined 15-12 record hurling for Durham, N. C., and Augusta, Ga., and Lee, son of former White Sox and Cleveland pitcher Thornton Lee, was signed by the Bengals after compiling a 15-0 record at the University of Arizona. He won seven games and lost three at Augusta.

Milwaukee announced the signing of right-handed pitchers Bob Trowbridge and Richard Grabowski while the Red Sox signed pitcher Bert Thiel, up from Dallas of the Texas League where he had an 18-11 record last season.

First basemen Ron Jackson and Jim Marshall returned their signed contracts to the White Sox but 20-game winner Billy Pierce asked for a little more time to "think over" the club's latest offer.

Pirates Noted for Rallies During 1956 Campaign

PITTSBURGH (UP) —The Pittsburgh Pirates won only 66 games last season but they proved themselves the "come-from - behind" team in the National League.

The Pirates had to wipe out a deficit to win 40 games and figured in 54 games that were decided by a single run. The Pirates won 25 of these on -run margin games and lost 29.

The Pirates longest winning streak of the season, nine, carried them to the top of the National League in mid-June. They split even in 66 games against eastern teams, but western teams took the measure of the Pirates for 55 games while the Bucs captured 33.

In the turnstile department, the Pirates' home attendance reached 949,879, highest since the 980,590 figure in 1951. The 1956 attendance was 480,481 more than in the 1955 season.

The Pirates also improved as a road attraction last year with attendances of 874,113, the highest since 1949's 1,010,843.

The Pirates were the talk of the league in 34 paying days last year when they occupied first division. They held first place nine different times in June.

Robinson Would Like to Manage

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Jackie Robinson, recently retired Brooklyn Dodger infielder, said Monday night that he would consider managing a team in a high classification minor league if an offer was made.

He said his decision would be subject to approval by his new employer, a New York restaurant company. Robinson was here to aid a fund drive of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Pitt Carbon in Bowling Sweep

Pitt Carbon blanked Clark and Reliance took two of three games from Cutler Hammer in Finishing Side Electric League bowling last night.

League standings show Cutler Hammer, 11-4; Pitt Carbon, 8-7; Clark, 6-9; and Reliance, 5-10.

Hartack Off To Good Start

MIAMI, Fla., (UP)—Willie Hartack is off to a good start at the Hialeah meeting. The 1955-56 national jockey champion has ridden nine winners during the first four days of the session.

Long-Time Rivals Meet at MHS Gym For Sec. 5 Lead

One of the keenest basketball rivalries in the WPIAL will be renewed tonight when Charleroi and Monessen clash at the Greyhound gym with the usual dramatic trimmings.

At stake will be:

1. The Section 5 lead.
2. Monessen's brilliant 38 game win streak in valley competition.

An overflow crowd of more than 3,000 fans will probably look in on the clash. Reserved seat tickets were sold out a week ago, but a quantity of general admission ducats will be available for the early-comers tonight.

The visiting Cougars are supposed to win. They will come to town with a superior record, which snows 13 wins in 14 outings. In contrast, Monessen's overall slate shows nine wins, five losses.

Even in Section

However in Section 5 play, both teams are even with 4-0 records.

Coach Henry Pennline's Charleroians will have a big edge in both height and experience. They are not as fast as the Hounds, though.

Every member of the Charleroi starting lineup will stand at least an inch taller than Monessen's biggest boy.

The Cougars starters will include Ollie Payne, 6-4; Bob Boda, 6-2; George Schoner, 6-3; Myron Pottios, 6-2; and Carl Witmyer, 6-2.

All but Witmyer were regulars at one time or another last season. Witmyer is up from the Jayvees.

Payne Dangerous

Payne, the only junior in the starting lineup, is regarded as the most dangerous scorer. However Schoener and Pottios are both good "inside" point-getters while Boda is a fine outside shot.

Witmyer has developed rapidly and is certainly no weak link in the starting array.

As a matter of fact, the Cougars may very well have one of the best players in the WPIAL sitting on the bench. He is Jimmy Chacko, a 5-10 sophomore with remarkable skill, who is the top reserve.

For the most part, those six boys have carried the burden for the Charleroians so far this season.

Monessen, unbeaten in valley play since way back in the 1951-52 season when Charleroi turned the trick, will open with its usual starters.

They will be Frank Crisi, 6-0; Dick DiBiaso, 6-1; Carl Crawley, 6-0; Maurice Mathieu, 5-9; and John Bogovich, 5-10. The sixth man is Joe Kurey, 6-0.

The Hounds have no stars. But they do boast balance and speed.

Wily Coach

Monessen also has a wily coach in the veteran Frank Janosik. Greyhound adherents are hoping that he will pull another "miracle" and devise a strategy which will permit his pint-sized cagers to cope with the giant visitors.

A comparison of the two records would seem to indicate a decisive win for the Charlerolians. However Charleroi-Monessen games usually even off on the playing court, thanks mainly to the intense rivalry between the two schools.

Down through the years, the two teams have met 73 times in basketball with Monessen winning on 42 occasions. The Hounds have taken the last four meetings.

Donora Ends 94 Game Streak by Charleroi Jrs.

One of the longest winning streaks in Junior WPIAL basketball history came to an end yesterday afternoon.

Donora Junior High's brilliant cagers clipped Charleroi, 48-42, at the losers floor.

Jimmy Bell paced the unbeaten Donorans to the win by tossing in 21 points. Sherman Ramey had 14.

Donora led most of the way, but the battling Charleroians didn't give up easily. They led briefly in the final period at 42-40 but the winners spurted for eight straight points in the closing moments.

De Fendis Easily Defeats Luedee For Sixth Straight

NEW YORK (UP)—Angelo Defendis, who works in a Brooklyn fruit store between ring appearances, is fast developing into a "top banana" in the light heavyweight division.

The hard - punching, former Golden Gloves champion registered his sixth straight victory and his 18th triumph in 20 pro bouts Monday night by breezing to a unanimous 10-round decision over rugged Jerry Luedee of New Haven, Conn., in their widely - televised fight at St. Nicholas Arena.

Luedee weighed 171¾ pounds to Defendis' 169, but that was the only advantage he enjoyed. The Canadian born battler put up a game fight and gained a moral victory in remaining on his feet through the entire 10 rounds. However, he was simply outgunned by the head-hunting Defendis.

Referee Petey Scalzo awarded Defendis eight rounds and gave Luedee two rounds, while Judge Joe Agnello favored the Brooklyn battler, 7-3. The other judge, Joe Eppy, had it much closer but still favored Defendis 5-4-1.

Another Fund For Geneva Star

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP)—Harry Jacobson, a local clothier, said Monday he was starting a fund to help pay the medical expenses of Dick Kadis.

Kadis has been in a coma since he was injured last September while playing for Geneva (Pa) College in a football game against Waynesburg (Pa) College at Waynesburg.

Jacobson, starting the fund with a $75 donation, said he hoped local sports and social groups would join in the drive.

Geneva College has contributed $1,000 toward the medical expenses and a campaign to match the amount is underway at Waynesburg.

Winner Will Take Lead In Section 10 Standings

The basketball ambitions of Rostraver High School may very well rest on the outcome of tonight's important meeting with Scottdale.

To begin with, the Section 10 lead will definitely go to the winner.

But Rostraver wants this game badly for still another reason. The plain fact is that the Leps MUST win to really stay in contention.

The experts figure that this year's race is so close that the eventual champion will almost have to win all games at home. The reasoning seems to be that a win or two ont he road, coupled with success at home, will be enough to earn the crown.

Rostraver has won three of four league tests so far, losing only by a slender margin at Hurst. Scottdale boasts a 4-1 record.

Similar Teams

The Leps and Scotties have what similar teams. Both have speed and good shooting to recommend them. Defensively the Scotties like to press all over the floor while the Leps usually drop back to a set pattern.

Other games in Section 10 tonight will send Derry Twp. to Ramsay and Dunbar to Ligonier.

Oddly enough, all of those teams are still in the race even though the season is almost half over.

Most of the Section 5 spotlight will be hogged by the Charleroi-at-Monessen game. Both quints are unbeaten in league play, so the loop lead also hinges on that outcome.

In other Section 5 matches, Bellmar will play host to Brownsville while Monongahela will go to California.

After Second Win

Bellmar, after four straight losses, upset Monongahela in its last outing. The Canes hope to keep going against Brownsville even though the oddsmakers favor the visitors.

California is a solid choice over Monongahela.

In Section 17, the big game will send pace-setting Perryopolis to South Huntingdon. Perry has won three starts to date while South has dropped three. Still the game figures to be close, particularly since the Golden Eagles are rough at home.

Other league frays will have Sewickley at West Newton and Irwin at East Huntingdon.

West Newton and Irwin, both sporting 2-1 records, are favored in their respective games.

Here's the way the Daily Independent sports department picks tonight's games:

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pennsylvania Athletic Commission has given conditional approval to a 10-round bout between middleweights Wilf Greaves and Johnny Eubanks on Feb. 25.

Greaves must come out of his Jan. 28 bout with middleweight champion Gene Fullmer in good condition. If he is kayoed by Fullmer, he will be barred for several weeks in Pennsylvania and the Feb. 25 fight would be off, the commission said.

The February fight will be staged at the Enright Theater, a movie house in the East Liberty district, promoter Ben Anolik said.

Owens Named Football Coach At Washington

SEATTLE (UP) —The University of Washington has its new football coach today, but actually the school didn't change much more than the boss-man's name.

Jim Owens, former Texas A&M aide, was named to the position Monday succeeding Darrell Royal who left Huskyville just before Christmas for a similar post at the University of Texas.

Both Owens and Royal are split-T teachers. They played their college football as four-year teammates at Oklahoma University under Bud Wilkinson and both were named All-Americans in 1949.

Royal introduced the split-T to the Pacific Coast Conference last season and came up with a 5-5 record, finishing the season with lopsided wins over Stanford and Washington State.

Owens, who inherits a good many of Royal's starters, said at College Station, Tex., Monday night that he hoped to improve on the record but "would be teaching the same type football as Royal with only a few elaborations."

George Briggs, Washington athletic director, announced Owens' selection at a press conference on the university campus Monday night. Terms of the contract were not discussed.

Mantle Earns Award as Top Pro Athlete

ROCHESTER, N.Y., (UP — Mickey Mantle, who specializes in spectacular belts, added a diamond-studded, $10,000 one to his collection today as the winner of the S. Rae Hickok "Professional Athlete of the year" award.

The switch-hitting, 25-year-old center-fielder, who received the costly belt at the annual Rochester-Press-Radio Club Polio Fund dinner here Monday night, thus became the third New York Yankee player to win the award.

Former Yankee shortstop Phil Ruzzuto was the first winner of the belt in 1950 and ex-Yankee pitcher Allie Reynolds won it the following year. Rocky Marciano was the 1952 winner, Ben Hogan captured the belt in 1953, Willie Mays of the Giants in 1954 and former Cleveland Browns' quarterback Otto Graham won it last year.

Mantle, who led the American League in batting, home runs and runs batted in last season, beat heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson in a nationwide balloting out teammate Don Larsen and by sports writers and sportscasters.

Ohio State, Bradley En Route To NCAA Basketball Tourney

By UNITED PRESS

Ohio State and Bradley, both unbeaten in conference play, rolled ahead today on the road to the NCAA basketball tournament, but only after Ohio State barely escaped an upset.

State's Buckeyes, the 10th-ranked team in the nation, trailed until the final six minutes of play at Madison, Wis., before rallying to beat Wisconsin, 67-64, Monday night. It was the 10th win in 13 games and gave them a perfect Big Ten record of 50.

Bradley, ranked 11th nationally, had a much easier time on its home court in Peoria, Ill., as it drubbed Tulsa, 72-56, for its seventh straight victory. The Braves now sport a 6-0 mark in the Missouri Valley Conference and a gaudy overall record of 13-2.

But Wisconsin, winless in the Big Ten this season, really threw a scare into Ohio State. The Badgers jumped off to a quick 12-5 lead and still led by 40-35 at halftime. Ohio State didn't go ahead until Vern Barstall's three-point play with six minutes left put them in front to stay, 60-57. Frank Howard led the Buckeyes with 23 points, but Bob Litzow canned 28 for Wisconsin, 18 of them in the first-half surge.

Bradley Breezes

Bradley, on the other hand, had a 33-29 halftime margin over Tulsa and breezed home as soph Gene Morse showed the way with 26 points. Tulsa's top man was Chester Harrington, and he managed only 12 points.

Seattle, ranked ninth nationally, racked up its 17th victory against two defeats by trouncing Gonzaga, 106-75. On Sunday night, Seattle had beaten the same foe by only one point.

In other leading games Monday night: Northwestern snapped a four-gam losing streak by beating Iowa, 70-63, in the Big Ten despite 23 points by Iowa's Clarence Wordlaw, and Jed Dommeyer of Minnesota sank 29 points in a 99-78 victory over Marquette, as 6-8 Mike Moran of Marquette tallied 24.

Canisius, ranked 12th nationally, will be the only high-ranked team in action tonight when it meets St. Bonaventure at Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium. Washington State will be at Idaho in the Pacific Coast Conference and Georgia Tech at Auburn in the Southeastern in other features.

Minister Protests the Suspension of Children Over Gym Class Attire

URBANA, Ill. (UP)—A minister sought to rally fellow clergymen to his cause today following the permanent suspension of his two children from school in a dispute over scanty attire in gym classes.

The Rev. Orval Lee supported his two youngsters when they refused to attend required physical education classes on the ground that the gym courses foster "immoral dress and unholy positions."

Lee, who is assistant superintendent of the United Holiness Churches of America, supported his children's boycott after seeing a newspaper picture of a gym class in which a girl was shown lying on the floor with her instructor's hands on her ankle and hip.

Lee said he felt that such practices "unconsciously instill in teenage girls the idea that a boy could do the same thing." He said he would not bicker with parents who allowed their children to take part in gym classes, clad only in the customary brief attire.

"But I want them to respect my children and the children of our belief in the stand we take against immoral dress and unholy positions," he added.

The children, Philip, 12, and Naomi, 13, had been under "technical suspension" until Monday night, when the Urbana Board of Education unanimously agreed that they be permanently suspended from school. Under the technical suspension, the two had attended all classes except physical education.

The board warned that "the suspension will remain in effect until they attend the regular P.. program or a modified program which takes into account their objections to wearing gym garb and in engaging in exercises with the body in prone or recumbent positions."

The minister said he already received encouragement from fellow ministers in Illinois and across the nation. They have supported his crusade against "sex revolution" and "atheistic onslaughts in the modern school system," Lee said.

He also said other ministers have written letters of protest against the physical education requirement to Gov. William G. Stratton and members of the state Legislature.

Take Steps to Make Mercy Killing Legal

TRENTON, N. J. (UP) —The New Jersey Medical Society was expected to present to the state Legislature today a resolution expressing its views on a petition to legalize mercy killing.

Richard Nevin, executive director of the 6,300-member society, said the organization's board of trustees adopted the resolution Jan. 13 on the euthanasia issue but withheld its release until today so each trustee could read and approve the finished draft.

The Medical Society was expected to go on record against the petition signed by 166 New Jersey physicians and introduced into the Legislature last week.

The petition, said to have been prepared by the Euthanasia Society of New York headed by the Rev. John Howland Lathrop of Brooklyn, N. Y., urged that "voluntary euthanasia should be permitted by law, brought out into the open and safeguarded against abuse, rather than as at present practiced illegally, surreptitiously and without regulation."

It suggested that mercy killing be authorized by a court of record after it is requested by a sufferer, and after investigation of the case by a court-appointed committee.

Under such a law a person suffering from an incurable disease such as cancer would first petition for his own death. A physician would then submit an affidavit to the validity of the petition and to the patient's condition then a court order would be sought to authorize ending the patient's life to stop his suffering.

Proponents of such a law argue that the aged and victims of incurable diseases who face long periods of agony, sometimes attempt crude methods of suicide. Some are released from the suffering secretly by relatives or doctors who are willing to stand trial for murder.

There was a similar move to legalize mercy killing in New Jersey seven years ago. It was unsuccessful.

Chairmen of TV, Radio for Brotherhood Week

NEW YORK (UP)—Louis B. Seltzer, editor of the Cleveland Press, Sunday named the chairmen of the television and radio committees for the national observance of Brotherhood Week.

The two men are Merle S. Jones, president of Columbia Broadcasting System television, and Don Durgin, vice-president of the American Broadcasting Co., Seltzer said.

Seltzer, who is national chairman of the observance, said the two men will lead a group of 37 TV and 62 radio executives, representing networks, associations, unions and stations throughout the nation, in mobilizing the broadcasting industry for cooperation with the event.

Special TV and radio kits, containing program materials and suggestions have been prepared for distribution to all radio and TV broadcasters.

Jones said each TV kit contains 20-second film spots by TV stars, live copy announcements, telops and slides—most of which can be used by stations all year.

Brotherhood Week, which has been observed every year since 1934, will run from Feb. 17-24. President Eisenhower is honorary chairman.

Army Engineers Okay Project at Chartiers Creek

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UP) — Army engineers have approved plans for a $1,600,000 flood control project along Chartiers Creek in Washington and Canton Twp.

A report by the Cincinnati division of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers called for widening and deepening of the creek channel from above the Route 18 bridge to the bridge at Hayes Avenue. This type of channel improvement would provide a "high degree of protection in the major flood area."

The engineers also said such a project would be economically justified as opposed to a full-scale project to eliminate completely all flood danger. In addition to the channel improvement phase, the plan calls for a dike on the northeast side of Hayes Avenue to prevent overflow.

Local authorities must approve a $254,000 share of the project cost before work can be started. This includes cost of land, easements, rights-of-way, bridge reconstruction and relocation of utilities.

Taking no Chances

EAST PATERSON, N. . (UP)—Police rushed to the city's new high school Monday on receiving a report that two suspicious-looking men had placed a ladder against the school's gate.

They found school Principal Levi Olson and grammar school Principal eorge Miller. They explained they were using the ladder to get elevation for photographs of the new building.

Disarmament Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) — Delegates sought to end the political debate on disarmament today and turn the thorny problem over to the world's five nuclear powers.

The U.N. General Assembly's main political committee resumes the disarmament debate today.

The United States is expected to introduce a resolution sponsored by at least 10 nations recommending the disarmament question be referred to the U.N. Disarmament Commission and its five - power subcommittee.

The sponsors of the resolution included India and Yugoslavia and four of the five great atomic powers—Britain, France, Canada and the United States.

The fifth big power, Soviet Russia, introduced two resolutions of its own last week. One called for an immediate halt to nuclear bomb tests — without controls — and the other recommended referring the disarmament problem to the subcommittee with a provision that the General Assembly be called back into special session on disarmament later.

Another resolution, sponsored by Japan, Canada and Norway, asked "urgent attention" be given proposals to register nuclear weapon tests with the United Nations in advance.

But the debate in the great hall of the glass-sided skyscraper on the East River will be overshadowed by the developments in the desert wastes of the Holy Land half a world away.

Israel advised U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarkjold last week that the evacuation of its troops from Egypt would be completed today, with the exception of the Gaza Strip and a strip along the Aqaba Gulf.

The Israeli government is reluctant to give up the two strategic areas without guarantee against future "hostile action" by the Egyptians. It contends Egyptian control would open the way for re-imposition of the blockade on Israeli shipping in the gulf, and resumption of Arab commando raids on Israel.

Protests Plant On Grounds of Water Pollution

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa. (UP)—The Western Pennsylvania Clean Streams Assn. has called on Gov. George M. Leader to hold up a building permit for construction of a paper mill at Franklin until the Hammermill Paper Co. proves the plant would not add to pollution in the Allegheny River.

At a meeting here Sunday, 50 members of the association adopted a resolution, which will be sent to the governor. It urged Leader "to examine very carefully the company's planned proposals so there will be no increase in the present amount of pollution" in the river.

Hammermill holds options on two sites in the Franklin area, but has not announced definite plans for plant construction. The Clean Streams Assn. contended no building permit should be issued until the company "proves it claims to a non-polluting method of making paper."

$100,000 Offered to Help Solve Crimes

CHICAGO (UP)—A $100,000 reward has been offered for the slayer of three Chicago boys in a bid by a group of wealthy men to "buy" the solution to that and other major crimes around the nation.

The Chicagoans pledged the money to the newly-formed Crime Detection Institute in hopes that mammoth rewards will help stop crime in Chicago and elsewhere.

Institute members said their idea was that informants would not be able to resist telling what they know of major crimes under the impetus of such huge sums of money.

Circuit Judge Julius H. Miner, who conceived the Institute and became its first president, said the Bureau of Internal Revenue has indicated officially that contributions to the reward fund would be tax-deductible.

The number one quarry of the businessmen was the man — or men—who picked up three Chicago schoolboys on a rain-swept street a year ago last October and committed one of the most brutal crimes in Chicago history.

The naked, battered bodies of John Schuessler, 13, his brother, Anton, 11, and Robert Peterson, 13, were found two days later in a forest preserve ditch. One of the greatest manhunts Chicago has ever known failed to produce the killer.

"It would seem logical that someone, somewhere knows something about this crime," Miner said. "Yet, not a trace of the perpetrators nor a real clue to the killer has yet been uncovered."

He said the reward for information leading to the murderer could well be over the $100,000 offered Monday, with an additional $33,650 already put forth for the slayer.

U. S. and Brazil In Agreement on Missile Station

RIO DE JANEIRO (UP) —The United States and Brazil signed a final agreement late Monday for establishing an American guided missile observation station on Brazil's Fernando de Noronha Island.

Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs signed the pact for the United States, and Foreign Minister Jose C. Macedo Soares signed for Brazil, ending six months of negotiations.

The Brazilian National Security Council voted final approval of the agreement at a special meeting called by President Juscelino Kubitschek.

Although terms of the agreement were not immediately disclosed, it was understood reliably that it grants long-term use of the island to the United States, although the island and the observation station will be under Brazilian command and fly the Brazilian flag.

Fire Destroys Grain Elevator in Chicago

CHICAGO (UP) —A multi-million-dollar fire, one of Chicago's worst in 23 years, destroyed a grain elevator and threatened to blow up another huge grannary before it was brought under control today.

Nearly half of the city's fire fighting forces battled the spectacular blaze, which raged out of control on Chicago's river front for about five hours in rainy weather.

Northeasterly wind gusts of up to 35 miles per hour sent flames licking 250 feet into the air and whipped sparks over a 10-block area.

The flames were visible for 15 miles and attracted about 10,000 spectators to the scene on the city's southeast side.

One of the onlookers, Floyd Traynham, 61, a Universal News Reel camerman, collapsed with an apparent heart attack and was dead on arrival at South Chicago Hospital.

There were no reports of injuries.

The blaze, of unknown cause, was spotted by watchman William Bullock at about 10 p.m., EST, Monday night. He ran from the elevator, owned by the Continental Grain Co., and seconds later a mass of flames leaped from the top of the building.

Damage estimates varied.

Ray J. Daley, acting fire marshal, said the loss would amount to "at least $2 million and probably more."

Firemen rushed about 90 pieces of equipment, 540 men and two fire boats to the scene in an effort to contain the flames. It was the heaviest concentration of fire fighters and equipment since the stockyards fire in 1934 when 140 pieces of equipment were used.

Macmillan Faces Parliament for The First Time

LONDON (UP)—Harold Macmillan faces Parliament for the first time as prime minister today. Opposition Socialists planned to greet him with new demands for guarantees against another Suez-style "armed conflict."

Parliament, in recess since Dec. 21, convenes one hour before Macmillan steps up to deal with an unusually large number of 25 motions dealing with subjects ranging from disarmament to a constitutional amendment.

His official status as prime minister to succeed Sir Anthony Eden will be only a few hours old because he first must be formally elected as leader of the ruling Conservative Party.

Socialist leaders pressed for a constitutional amendment barring any type of "armed conflict" in the future, unless first approved by Parliament. They hoped to close a loophole in the constitution which Eden used to order British forces into Egypt without parliamentary approval by calling it an "armed conflict" instead of war.

But Macmillan was expected to reject the motion. He has already said he believes history will prove Eden right in ordering the Suez intervention.

Ike Surprised UP Used Walkie-Talkie at Parade

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower was surprised to learn that the United Press used a walkie-talkie radio to help report his day-long inauguration activities.

As the President left the parade reviewing stand Monday, he noticed Merriman Smith, UP's White House reporter, standing nearby.

"What are you doing here?" he asked Smith, peering at the walkie-talkie.

"It's the radio which followed you all the way through the campaign," Smith said.

"My goodness," the President exclaimed, "I didn't know you used that today."

Following the President throughout the day, Smith dictated a running report on Mr. Eisenhower's activities to the UP Washington office.
